United Nations to be Asked To Join in Putting Sanctions Against Rebellious Colony

LONDON (AP) — The British government made plans today to wage economic war against defiant Rhodesia despite the grim knowledge that the cost could be crippling.

The nation braces for rising turmoil in Africa, more bitterness in the Commonwealth, parliamentary strife at home and a harmful effect on its already shaky finances.

These were some of the accepted implications of Prime Minister Harold Wilson's vow to crush Ian Smith's rebel white settler regime in Rhodesia no matter how long it takes.

One immediate concern was that a run on the pound sterling might develop in stock exchanges reacting nervously to the Rhodesian cabinet's rejection of the peace formula Wilson and Smith drew up last weekend.

The Bank of England was reported to have made 10 million pounds ($28 million) available in New York and to be ready to spend millions more in the foreign exchange market to fend off any sudden onslaught by speculators.

Ban On Trade

Warning the Rhodesians that "certain inevitable consequences" must flow from their continued defiance of Britain, Wilson ordered full speed ahead on moves to impose a worldwide ban on trade with the breakaway colony.

Foreign Secretary George Brown was leaving for New York tonight to steer Britain's application for compulsory sanctions through the U.N. Security Council.

A council meeting was scheduled Thursday morning, and quick action was expected. Officials in Washington pledged continued U.S. support for British actions against Rhodesia. But aroused Africans at the United Nations renewed demands that Britain use force.

'Long Ago'

"Britain should have used force long ago," Ambassador Moussa Leo Keita of Mali, a member of the council, told a reporter. Keita said he was aware that Britain had an economic stake in Rhodesia.

Ambassador Mohamed Fahreddine of Sudan said Smith's

Fog, Drizzle Dampen Day

Short Respite From Cold Weather Not Expected to Last

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Ordinarily, a December day with temperatures in the 40s would be something to be happy about. But not in Wisconsin today.

Fog, drizzle, rain and heavily overcast skies added up to a dismal weather picture, and more cold weather is due back in the state tonight and Wednesday.

One bright note was the fact that high temperatures and rain cleared the southern part of the state of the ice cover left by Sunday's freezing rain.

Snow, Sleet

Snow and sleet swept through northern Wisconsin Monday night as rain fell in the south.

The greatest precipitation was .34 of an inch in the Wausau area. Park Falls had .27, La Crosse .15 and Madison and Beloit .13.

Milwaukee and the Beloit region topped the temperature climb in Wisconsin Monday with 36 degrees. Others ranged down to 23 at Park Falls.

Lowest reading early today was 23 at Park Falls. Superior and Wausau had 25. Beloit was the warmest place with a low of 33.

NASA Director Defends Cost

BY WILLIAM C. CAREY

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — Clutching a critical newspaper headline in one hand and using the other for emphasis, director James E. Webb defended the U.S. space program here Monday and suggested mayors find out more about it.

Webb, who heads the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, was one of the keynote speakers at the 43rd annual Congress of Cities sponsored by the National League of Cities.

Webb, speaking without a text, quickly responded to a few mayors of larger cities who have charged too much money is being poured into the space program when more should be diverted into programs to help cities with their problems.

"The cities are apparently challenging space priorities," Webb declared, "but I didn't come here to challenge the cities."

Irked by Attacks

Webb made his mission clear but obviously was irked by those who would advocate wounding the space research program dollar-wise.

Webb said he wasn't here to argue with anyone — he was promoting the space program and made disclosures on how cities and mankind in general will benefit from it in the years to come.

He predicted the Apollo flight

to the moon would be made during the last quarter of 1969.

Webb also said it is hoped to land on Mars by 1973 or 1975, explaining by then technology will have been developed to see if life exists there.

Half the Cost

He said spokesmen for the League of Cities were inaccurate when they said the 10-year space program was costing $70 billion to put one man on the moon. The correct figure, Webb said, was $35 billion.

Webb cited that 95 per cent of

4 Deaths Boost State Highway Toll to 1,025

2 Kenosha Men Die in Crash Late Monday

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The deaths of four persons boosted Wisconsin's 1966 highway fatality toll to 1,025, compared with 954 on this date last year and 998 at this time in 1964 when a record 1,059 persons lost their lives on Wisconsin roads.

Leonard Jerrdeau, 56, of Muscoda, was killed Monday in a crash on U. S. 61 five and a half miles south of Boscobel. Grant County Sheriff's deputies said Jerrdeau's car sideswiped a cattle truck in an attempt to pass the vehicle, left the road, struck an embankment and rolled over.

Daniel J. Mares, 20, and Raymond Roseth Jr., 22, both of Kenosha, were killed late Monday when their convertible collided with a station wagon at the junction of States 50 and 192 west of Kenosha.

The station wagon driver, Robert L. Brown, 24, of Kenosha, a Marine private home on leave, was hospitalized.

Victor F. Novak, 53, of rural Kewaunee was injured fatally Monday when his car collided with a semi-trailer truck at a State 163 intersection in Kewaunee County. His wife was hospitalized.

Howard W. Foster, 56, of New Richmond, was killed Monday night when his car slammed into the rear of a truck parked on U. S. 65, six miles south of New Richmond. The truck driver, Curtis E. Knutson, 31, of Sand Creek, Wis., told authorities he had left his truck to ask directions.

The party chose Huber as its minority floor leader for the fifth time.

Obey, 28, a third-term Assemblyman from Wausau, was elected as assistant floor leader in the Democratic assembly caucus over Fred Kessler of Milwaukee and incumbent Norman Anderson of Madison. Anderson had held the post the past two years.

George Molinaro of Kenosha, co-chairman of the joint finance committee, was named caucus chairman over Assemblymen Raymond Tobiasz of Milwaukee and William Rogers of Kaukauna.

More Air Assaults Staged on North; Little Letup Foreseen

U. S. Jets Again Tangle With Communist MIGs; Plane Lost

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Another U.S. plane was shot down over North Viet Nam today, bringing the toll in the last 24 hours of the quickening air war to three American aircraft.

The U.S. Command announced that American jets tangled with Communist MIG interceptors Monday for the fourth straight day, but there was no word that any American or North Vietnamese planes were downed in the dogfights.

In South Viet Nam, Vietnamese military headquarters announced the mass surrender of 62 Viet Cong guerrillas in the enemy-infested Hon Chong — Twin Sisters — mountain area on the Gulf of Siam near the Cambodian border.

A spokesman said that 2,250

Bombing May Be Sought of Red Airfields

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U. S. Air Force leaders in Viet Nam probably will press anew for bombing of North Viet Nam's jet airfields because of the greatly increased activity by MIG jet fighters, sources indicated today.

American F105 Thunderchiefs knocked down one MIG17 for certain Sunday and probably downed another. This boosted the U. S. score to 26 definite kills and two probabilities. North Vietnamese pilots have shot down only five American planes.

Decision-making U. S. officials in Washington have ruled out any strikes against North Viet Nam's jet airfields, at least until now. They said there is no need to hit them until the North Vietnamese air force becomes a serious threat.

Fliers Rescued

The two fliers aboard were picked up in a rescue operation that required three helicopters which also rescued two of the paramedics sent in to aid the jet pilots.

An Air Force RF101 Voodoo and an F105 Thunderchief were downed during bombing raids on the north Monday, while other American pilots clashed with MIG17s and advanced model MIG21s north and northwest of Hanoi. The pilots of both the downed planes were listed as missing.

In a related development, Communist China charged that U.S. planes sank six Chinese fishing boats in the Gulf of Tonkin last week, killing 17 Chinese fishermen and wounding 29 others. U.S. officials declined to comment on the charge.

Hitchhiker Pulls Knife in Woman's Car

Forces Appleton Resident to Drive Him to Oshkosh

Wisconsin police agencies were alerted this morning to be on the lookout for a young well-dressed hitchhiker who got into an Appleton woman's car, pulled a knife and forced her to drive to Oshkosh about 7 a.m.

Mrs. Lloyd Learman, 20, 1201 W. Packard Ave., Appleton, told Outagamie County police the man got into her car when she stopped for a red light at Blue Mound Road and State 125 near Elm Tree Bakery in the Town of Grand Chute.

Mrs. Learman said he had appeared to be hitchhiking. He got into her car on the passenger's side, closed the door and said he wanted to go to Oshkosh, she told police.

Pulled Knife

Mrs. Learman, who was alone in her car, told the man she was going to Neenah. He then reached into his overcoat pocket and pulled out a knife which she said resembled a kitchen knife with a four to five-inch blade

Japanese Sink the Battleship Arizona

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — Twenty-five years ago Wednesday was a gray day, cold, even in Louisiana. I was fishing in Salt Bayou, 30 miles from New Orleans, with a man who had taught English in some of the best schools in the East. He had an elegant touch, even toward fish. But we didn't catch any.

And when the sun began to dissolve behind the trees we went across the bayou, into the channel with the tall grass, keeping the outboard motor low. We pulled up at the wharf near Big Sam's boathouse. The little man who worked for him came skipping and hopping down to see us.

"This place is loaded with crappies," he said. "You ought to try them." We did. He kept telling us where they were: here, there, there. But we didn't get any. We were shaking in the cold. The sun was gone. We packed up and went up to the boathouse.

Looking, Listening

Big Sam was there, behind the counter where he sold soft drinks and sandwiches. But he hardly said hello to us. He was looking up at a radio on a shelf on the wall, and listening. There were two strangers there, too, looking up and listening.

And the voice on the radio was saying the Japanese had sunk the battleship Arizona. We thought we had come in late on a program. I asked Sam what the program was. He said there was no program. He said the Japanese had attacked Pearl Harbor. I asked him if he was kidding. He said: "No, just listen."

The voice was saying more. I looked at the little man who had been jumping up and down about the crappies. I asked him: "Did you know about the Japanese when you came down to the dock?" He said: "Yes." I said: "Why didn't you tell us?" He said: "I never thought about it."

The English teacher and I listened a few minutes more.

We walked out into the dark cold. Then, and I don't know why, we suddenly shook hands as if we were saying goodbye to each other or to something. "And one of us said: 'This is where our lives change.' And they did. And, while the little man who liked crappies forgot about Pearl Harbor, practically nobody else has, ever since, or could."

There were a lot of changes. For, while trying to blow up Pearl Harbor was just a part of World War II, what really blew up was the roof of a world which then became a mixed bag of blessings and dismay for the next quarter of a century.

Until the big war, for most people the world had been a lifelong journey through a dismal swamp where, except for Japan, almost every country in Asia and Africa was centuries behind the times, held in outright thralldom by the big powers of the West, or under the Western thumb.

The war brought changes as fantastic as the age of exploration. Everywhere new nations were born with a chance for the first time to achieve their own ecstasy or agony.

Has man learned much from World War II? Not much, basically. In many ways he has only rearranged the furniture.

Turn Cannibal Japan was denuded of its acquisitions, forced back into its home islands. The vast Germany of Hitler was split in half. But the allies split in half, too. The Soviet Union is now the antagonist of the West. And Japan and West Germany, more prosperous now than in all their history, are the friends and proteges of the United States.

Through the bankruptcy of power that the war brought, many people and nations acknowledged grudgingly the rights of others to freedom, justice and dignity only in turn to see the newly freed turn cannibals on themselves and the rights of neighbors.

Millions of men, illiterate and hungry, still trudge the dismal swamp of existence. Nations get tangled, as before, in stupidity and cupidity. The biggest powers live behind a burglar alarm system of radar screens and missiles.

And there is no one alive able to predict whether man suffered enough or learned enough from World War II to avoid World War III.

$46.32 Tax Rate Proposed For Menasha

$150,000 School Budget Reduction Assumed in Total

MENASHA — If the 1967 budget is approved unchanged tonight by the common council, the tax rate will be $46.32 per $1,000 of assessed valuation, after deducting state credit. The rate would be up $5.22 over the current year's figure.

The rate assumes school board reductions totalling $150,000 from the school budget that was proposed originally.

Aldermen got their first glimpse of the final totals Monday night. Their comments tended generally to express the belief they had trimmed as much as possible from the spending proposals for general city purposes.

Public Hearing

The public hearing on the combined general city and school budgets is scheduled for 7 p.m. in the council chamber, with the council expected to act on the budget during the regular meeting immediately afterward.

The figures presented Monday were assembled by City Clerk Harry Kind, combining the results of recent budget-cutting sessions of the finance committee and completed by the clerk-comptroller in weekend and extra-hour time in order to have it ready for the meeting.

The total budget totals $4,731,266.20 for school and general city purposes and county and state property taxes. The sum represents an actual reduction of $45,721 from the current budget. Massive differences between the current year's and proposed 1967 capital outlay accounts, many of which dropped to virtually nothing after being unusually high this year, account for the reduction.

Since many of the present year's outlay were financed through bond issues, they were not included in the 1966 tax levy. The proposed levy for the coming year therefore shows an increase of $326,541, for a total to be raised through property taxes of $2,441,852.

Of the $5.22 increase in the tax rate, Kind showed aldermen that spending for general city purposes accounts for 48 cents; city debt service, $1.51; recreation department, 1 cent; Neenah-Menasha Sewerage Commission, 38 cents and library 14 cents.

School operating expenses require a $1.94 increase: school debts, 86 cents; vocational school operation, 14 cents, state taxes 3 cents.

The tax rate for parks is down 6 cents, for the swimming pool down 1 cent, and for vocational school debt and county taxes remains unchanged.

"Tight Budget"

Kind told the council it is a "very tight budget," and one that will require a lot of watching to see that it is lived within. He said it contained "no fat."

Council President Robert Probst said, "I hate to see it even this high," and warned that any future requests by city departments to spend money not included in the budget would have to be turned down.

The budget includes $55,000 in "salary adjustments" recommended by the finance committee to cover anticipated increases for the coming year. Salary and benefit negotiations with city employees, policemen and firemen remain incomplete, however. The council went behind closed doors following the committee of the whole session to discuss progress made so far in the negotiations.

Kind said today the salary ordinance would be included in tonight's agenda.

Street Crews Work Quickly To Clear Curbs, Gutters

Appleton street crews Monday night cleared ice and snow from gutters and curbs and completed hauling snow from the center of College and Wisconsin Avenues.

Donald C. Bengs, acting director of public works, this morning said the gutters were cleared to prevent recurrence of a situation of last winter when slush froze and remained along city streets throughout the winter.

Snow accumulated during Sunday's storm was immediately pushed to the center of Appleton's two main east-west avenues allowing traffic to flow in both directions and leaving curbs free for parking.

It is normal procedure to shovel snow to the center of main traffic arteries just after a heavy snowfall and remove it the following night when traffic has abated.

Classics majors at Lawrence University will now have an opportunity to live and study in Rome under a program arranged by the Intercollegiate Center for Classical Studies.

At a recent meeting, the Lawrence faculty voted to accept an invitation to join the newly opened center. Its purpose is to provide classics students with first-hand knowledge of the Greek and Roman world they study while at the same time continuing their regular class work.

Approximately 20 institutions, including both large and small colleges, are members of the center. It began operation in February, 1966, financed chiefly through grants from the Danforth and Old Dominion Foundations.

The center admits 30 classics majors who spend a 20-week term in Rome. Courses in Greek and Latin, similar to those taught at the participating institutions, are supplemented by field work within the area of

Neenah's 1967 Budget Cut By $60,700

Proposed Tax Rate Reduced to $26.13 Per $1,000 Value

NEENAH — The Neenah aldermen will face their constituents at the public hearing on Monday, Dec. 19, with a proposed 1967 tax rate of $26.13 per $1,000 of assessed valuation, up $3.11 from the present levy.

Councilmen whittled away at the departmental budgets Monday evening for two hours and came up with only $60,700 in possible cuts, with better than half of it coming from the public works expenditures.

The scheduled public hearing will be one of the latest in recent years and is expected to cause problems in preparing the tax bills for the city as well as the townships which must await the official word on school costs before calculating their tax bills.

Clerk Comptroller R. V. Hauser said his department would have to work over-time to prepare the tax bills even with the help of the recently-purchased bookkeeping machine.

The tax rate won't be official until the public hearing and that session can't be slated until 10 days after the publication of the proposed budget.

A few items still can be reduced following the public hearing — but there is also the possibility that more money could be added to the budget at that time.

Firearm Answer False Alarm, Service Calls

Appleton firemen responded with several units to what turned out to be a false alarm at 2:37 a.m. today.

A man telephoned the alarm room stating there was a fire at a store at 1001 N. Oneida St. Firemen found no fire.

At 6:31 a.m. today, firemen went to the home of Mrs. Ralph Shaw, 1531 N. Oneida St., after they were notified of a smoke smell in the building. Firemen, after detecting a faint gas odor, advised Mrs. Shaw to notify a serviceman.

Firemen used their 85-foot aerial truck about 11 p.m. Monday to assist workmen in securing two blocks of granite that came loose above the entrance to Appleton State Bank.

Neenah's 1967 Budget Cut By $60,700

Proposed Tax Rate Reduced to $26.13 Per $1,000 Value

NEENAH — The Neenah aldermen will face their constituents at the public hearing on Monday, Dec. 19, with a proposed 1967 tax rate of $26.13 per $1,000 of assessed valuation, up $3.11 from the present levy.

Councilmen whittled away at the departmental budgets Monday evening for two hours and came up with only $60,700 in possible cuts, with better than half of it coming from the public works expenditures.

The scheduled public hearing will be one of the latest in recent years and is expected to cause problems in preparing the tax bills for the city as well as the townships which must await the official word on school costs before calculating their tax bills.

Clerk Comptroller R. V. Hauser said his department would have to work over-time to prepare the tax bills even with the help of the recently-purchased bookkeeping machine.

The tax rate won't be official until the public hearing and that session can't be slated until 10 days after the publication of the proposed budget.

A few items still can be reduced following the public hearing — but there is also the possibility that more money could be added to the budget at that time.

$46.32 Tax Rate Proposed For Menasha

$150,000 School Budget Reduction Assumed in Total

MENASHA — If the 1967 budget is approved unchanged tonight by the common council, the tax rate will be $46.32 per $1,000 of assessed valuation, after deducting state credit. The rate would be up $5.22 over the current year's figure.

The rate assumes school board reductions totalling $150,000 from the school budget that was proposed originally.

Aldermen got their first glimpse of the final totals Monday night. Their comments tended generally to express the belief they had trimmed as much as possible from the spending proposals for general city purposes.

Public Hearing

The public hearing on the combined general city and school budgets is scheduled for 7 p.m. in the council chamber, with the council expected to act on the budget during the regular meeting immediately afterward.

The figures presented Monday were assembled by City Clerk Harry Kind, combining the results of recent budget-cutting sessions of the finance committee and completed by the clerk-comptroller in weekend and extra-hour time in order to have it ready for the meeting.

The total budget totals $4,731,266.20 for school and general city purposes and county and state property taxes. The sum represents an actual reduction of $45,721 from the current budget. Massive differences between the current year's and proposed 1967 capital outlay accounts, many of which dropped to virtually nothing after being unusually high this year, account for the reduction.

Autopsy Fails To Solve Death

Play; Laboratory
Test Will Be Made

MARION — An autopsy performed Monday morning failed to reveal the cause of death of Colin Lee Salzman, 14, who was found dead in the front seat of the family car Sunday night.

A Wausau pathologist told sheriff's department authorities laboratory tests now will be made in an effort to learn the cause of death. The tests will take approximately a week to complete, he said. There was no evidence of foul play, and the car had not been running, police said.

The son of Mrs. Lucille Suehring, Colin was found dead in the family auto which was parked in the garage. Mrs. Suehring told police her son left home about 2 p.m. and said he was going to look for a job shoveling snow.

When he failed to return by 9 p.m., Mrs. Suehring notified Marion Police Chief Jack Beto. She found the body of her son in the car at approximately 10 p.m.

An autopsy was ordered by Dr. William McGinnis, Waupaca County deputy coroner.

Funeral services for the youth are scheduled at 3 p.m. Wednesday at the First United Methodist Church.

Friends may call anytime today until noon Wednesday at the Uttomark Funeral Home and from 1 p.m. until the time of service at the church.

toward eliminating non-conforming uses now present.

Sixth Dist. Rep.-Elect William Steiger, Oshkosh, explained that this is the first legislation with some teeth for enforcement.

Water Bill 614 was passed while Steiger was serving his third term as Winnebago County Assemblyman.

He said the bill consolidates the functions of seven offices into the Department of Resource Development. Freeman Holmer, recently appointed department director, outlined the action the new office hoped to carry out.

"Don't Want Sewage" Vernon Geiger, Outagamie County soil conservationist, explained that Appleton recently decided to go to Lake Winnebago for its water supply and "we don't want to be drinking your sewage when we turn on our taps," he said.

He continued "we think that the southern counties in the watershed of Lake Winnebago have a responsibility to the cities using its water for human consumption to insure that water that enters the lake is clean."

Bubolz showed slides of the Wolf River Basin and explained what his commission was doing to combat the pollution in the upper portion of the river.

"If we work to keep the water in the upper Wolf clean and it comes down to Lake Winnebago and the waters there are already polluted our effort would have been in vain," Bubolz commented.

He also urged four committees to be appointed by the steering committee. They are water quality and quantity, land use planning, recreation and economic development.

The steering committee with Esler as chairman will be utilizing the commission's office for its mechanical work. The first meeting scheduled for mid-January will be arranged through the commission's office, Esler explained.

New Officers Were Seated Monday night at the monthly meeting of the Outagamie County Deputy Sheriffs' Association. Symphony Concert Shows Year's Gains

of Lawrence University
The Fox Valley Symphony Orchestra opened its second season with a concert Sunday night at Lawrence Memorial Chapel. A complete report on this event will appear in Sunday's music column. A brief summary is given here.

There was notable improvement over last spring's successful premiere concert. Precision of attack and clarity of texture were especially impressive qualities for this reviewer. Conductor Robert Gutter, who had the difficult task of taking over a new orchestra after only one season, due to the illness of conductor Karlos Moser, achieved remarkable results.

The performance of the Shostakovich First Symphony under his direction was certainly the most impressive accomplishment of the evening. This is no easy piece, and it calls for precision, balance, accuracy, skillful ensemble, and careful pacing. The result was not merely acceptable or good, but individual and exciting. To be sure, winds and brasses were often too strong for the strings, as was the case last year. The string sound, however, is relaxed, warm, homogeneous, and never forced.

"Amazingly Good" In fact, I think the quality of sound throughout the orchestra is amazingly good, and the only serious problem is that of proper balance between choirs. The Mozart Overture to The Magic Flute had good moments, but was taken at too headlong a pace for a secure or revealing performance. Between Mozart and Shostakovich we heard violinist Won Mo Kim, artist-in-residence at the University of Wisconsin at Madison, in the Tchaikovsky Violin Concerto.

I think it was the wrong piece for Mr. Kim. He did not display the technical fire or the tonal opulence necessary to the concerto, and it lacked passion and excitement. Best was the quiet slow movement. Part of the blame must be laid to the orchestral accompaniment, which too often dominated the soloist. And no doubt part of the blame goes to the weather, which necessitated a difficult and unenviable trip up from Madison for conductor and soloist both.

Weather Hurt The weather didn't help the size of the audience, either. That, and what appeared to be poor publicity, kept the number of listeners painfully small.

Players and conductor deserved far better than that, not only for their dedicated work during the past months, but for the splendid and encouraging results. There was plenty of excitement generated on stage and in the hall by this concert, but the size of the audience was certainly a big disappointment.

We must do lots better than that for the next concert, March 12, at which time Karlos Moser again will be conducting the group.

Icy Streets Cause Crashes

Ten Accidents,
21 Cars Combine
To Injure Three

Slippery streets figured in most of the 10 accidents that resulted in three injuries in Appleton Monday. A total of 21 cars were involved in the accidents, police said today.

Injured when their car left the 1900 block of S. Memorial Drive and struck a utility pole about 11 p.m. Monday were Rose Johnson, 1344 W. Wisconsin Ave., the driver, with a head laceration and knee injuries, and her passenger, Jean Schiltz, 1508 N. Richmond St., who received arm, shoulder and rib injuries.

Both women were taken to Appleton Memorial Hospital by Larry's Ambulance. Details of the accident were not learned this morning because police had not filed an accident report.

Sandra Reybrock, 4, suffered a chin injury when a car driven by Delores M. Reybrock, 131 S. Washington St., Kimberly, was struck from behind in a three-car accident in the 1700 block of E. Wisconsin Avenue Monday morning.

Appleton police said the Reybrock car, which was stopped prior to turning into a driveway, was struck from behind by a car driven by Anne A. Wilcox, route 1. The Wilcox car then was struck in the rear by a car driven by Walter H. Arndt, 51, route 2.

vertisements and bills," Lovell added with a smile.

He said the 12 days in space accomplished much and made many contributions to future trips, citing the rendezvous and extensive space walk as a few examples.

"We did a lot of little things up there, too, that we didn't think could be done," Lovell appended.

He noted geologists got a helping hand through the photographs taken of the world — much clearer in detail than any of the past.

Lovell gave credit to the thousands having some direct or indirect connection with the U.S. space program, declaring, "You have to remember there are a lot of people helping to keep us alive."

Asked about Unidentified Flying Objects (UFO's), Lovell said in his flights from Earth and in space he never saw any to his knowledge.

"We've never seen objects in flight which could not be explained," Lovell added.

Alluding to his Gemini mission and space walk, Lovell said at no time did he have an ill physical effects.

Lovell said recent criticism in some circles about the cost of the space program would have no effect on the morale of the astronauts who will be riding Apollo to the moon by the end of 1969.

"I'm getting ready for it already (the flight) and I know the others are just as eager," Lovell said.

And then the conversation ended on a light note concerning the future of one Capt. James Lovell.

"When we get back from the moon, I'll be looking forward to those old magazines, advertisements and bills," Lovell said with a grin that reflected a portrait of the man's courage and confidence.

Appoint Myse Counsel For Youth From Ohio Charged With Forgery

Legal counsel was appointed Monday for Michael D. Dietrich, 19, Dayton, Ohio, who is charged with forging a payroll check in Appleton Nov. 11.

The youth, whom Appleton police said uses the aliases David A. Rich and Steve Webber, was found indigent when he was arraigned in Outagamie County Court Branch 2. Judge Gustave J. Keller appointed attorney Gordon Myse and continued the case to Friday afternoon. Dietrich is being held under $2,500 bond.

Appleton police, who brought the youth back from Cedar Rapids, Iowa, last Saturday, said he altered a $97.76 payroll check from Appleton Coated Paper Co. to read $197.96.

Police said he worked at a Coated Paper under the name of David A. Rich, to whom the check was payable.

per cent, Miller Electric, 16 per cent and small business in Division 9 doubled its giving.

Others Run Ahead

Several divisions and teams are running ahead of the total percentage of the goal since our last report, Van Sistine said. Variety clothing stores, under team captain Jack Close have hit 88 per cent; Schools, under James Cowan, 91; dentists, with Richard Hamilton, 94; professional division, under chairman Ed Merten, 88; and small insurance and real estate offices under Dwight Warren, 106.

"With so many of the areas of our community indicating their support of a united campaign, we, meaning myself and the other 2,000 volunteers, feel sure that Appleton will show the 14 agencies that we want their services to continue as needed. Other cities our size and smaller are going over the top, and I can't believe that Appleton will not show this kind of support and concern," Van Sistine concluded.

Agencies that will share in the budgeting of the Red Feather funds are American Red Cross, Appleton Apostolate, Boy Scouts, Catholic Activities Council, Children's Service Society, Girl Scouts, Golden Age Club, Lutheran Social Services, Mental Health Association, Salvation Army, United Community Services, USO, Visiting Nurse Association and the YMCA.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — Would you believe . . . gambling and champagne for breakfast.

It's a way of life here on "the strip" where people gamble away their problems and every day cares . . . and sometimes inherit new ones.

The plush hotels, entertainment spots, gaming casinos — they're wondrous to behold as man's contribution to the desert of the West.

The spots on "the strip" are in business 24 hours a day — a far cry from Wisconsin's 1 a.m. closing law.

Tourism Big Business

While the ultimate in entertainment and chance can be found here — all regulated by state law — tourism is also big in the Las Vegas area.

The "strip" is a fun town in itself and one doesn't necessarily have to be a gambler to enjoy the scene.

People here are friendly and they want you to enjoy your visit — and spend money.

Actually, "money" is the name of the game.

A visitor is greeted in the airport terminal by slot machines and they are constantly clicking a merry old tune.

At the Dunes Hotel and casino, where the word plush does not do justice, a Milwaukee newspaperman showed us how it's done.

A group of newsmen covering the 43rd annual Congress of American Cities decided to try their luck at the "slots" and assorted adventures.

Success was limited, except for our companion, who being the last of the big spenders, let go with 25 cents at one of the quarter machines.

On the first quarter he hit the jackpot and decided that batting 1,000 per cent couldn't be improved upon . . . and retired with his winnings.

But here in the gaming capital of the West, he is the exception rather than the rule.

Midwestern mayors and other municipal officials scheduled to fly out of Chicago's O'Hare Field Thursday night heard the word that earlier an incendiary bomb had been removed from a plane an hour before it was to have taken off with 46 persons aboard.

The big question mark among "show people" and the natives was the secret arrival on the "strip" of billionaire Howard Hughes, who reportedly closeted himself in a penthouse suite at the Desert Inn, among conflicting stories circulating about his health.

He arrived here on his own special train, a trip costing him over $15,000, according to reports.

A federal grand jury is continuing its probe into alleged skimming at some of the major gambling casinos, along with investigating hidden interests in the night spots. To date: nothing sensational.

Lurleen Wallace Won't Hold Inaugural Ball

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—There will be no inaugural ball next month when Lurleen Wallace becomes governor of Alabama.

John Pemberton, chairman of inauguration day planning, said Monday that "due to the cost of the commitment in Viet Nam with many of our native sons involved, it has been decided that it would be inappropriate to have an inaugural ball this year."

Pemberton said the inaugural parade and ceremony Jan. 18 would be dedicated to "all Alabama servicemen who are fighting in defense of our state and nation."

State Universities Will Offer Graduate Work

Planning Report Indicates Research, Public Service Also to Grow Within Next Decade

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

MADISON — The nine state universities will become full-fledged universities, with major graduate school programs, during the next decade, the board of regents of the institutions was told today in a long-range planning report prepared by its staff.

The schools will become major centers of research, public service and graduate instruction, even as they have overtaken the University of Wisconsin and its branches in becoming the principal source of instruction for undergraduates, the report said.

The historical review and long-range plan projection of Assistant Director Robert DeZonia of the board noted that the enlargement of the system during the past two decades could be called "cataclysmic."

Schools Grew

The institutions were established as "normal schools" for the training of teachers, starting a century ago. Later they became "state colleges." A few years ago, with expansion of curriculum and some provision of graduate instruction, the regents gave them the name of "universities." They are operating separately from the University of Wisconsin and its branches, but both systems are under the general supervision of the Coordinating Committee for Higher Education (CCHHE).

In the system as a whole, enrollments have doubled in the past four years. High growth rate is forecast in every official projection published recently. While major emphasis continues upon preparing teachers, extensive liberal arts curricula and other special ties have evolved.

Offer Graduate Work

The forecast handed to the regents today said the schools will remain the primary attraction of under-graduates but "graduate work in fields other than teacher education will have to be offered if the state universities are to assume their required responsibility in providing post-bachelor's study for the rapidly increasing numbers of students planning to continue their formal education past the baccalaureate level."

DeZonia conceded that such growth plans will bring about a collision with the University of Wisconsin, which is also interested in expansion in many directions.

DeZonia suggested autonomy of the two systems is probably desirable, as shown by the successful development of the parallel systems over more than a century, but he said that a "union may be inevitable."

(The CCHHE is an attempt to control programs and expenditures, and represents a compromise version of a hard-fought proposal 11 years ago to fuse the two systems into a single system of higher education under the control of a single board of regents.)

County Boards Staff Chief Rural Oriented

Robert Mortenson Former Counsel for Towns Association

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

MADISON — A 48-year-old lawyer with a rich experience in rural government problems today was named chief of staff of the powerful Wisconsin County Boards Association.

Robert Mortenson, widely known as counsel for the Wisconsin Towns Association, was chosen by the County Association directors to succeed Alfred J. Thelen, the "Mr. Counties" of Wisconsin legislative lobbying for more than three decades.

Thelen will remain on the Association staff for a year as a consultant, the directors said. Mortenson said he would resign his assignment as legal counsel for the Towns Association.

Verified Forecast

The retirement of Thelen and the selection of Mortenson verified forecasts published in The Post-Crescent during the last two weeks. Competition for the Thelen succession had been spirited and at least eight prominent candidates were considered.

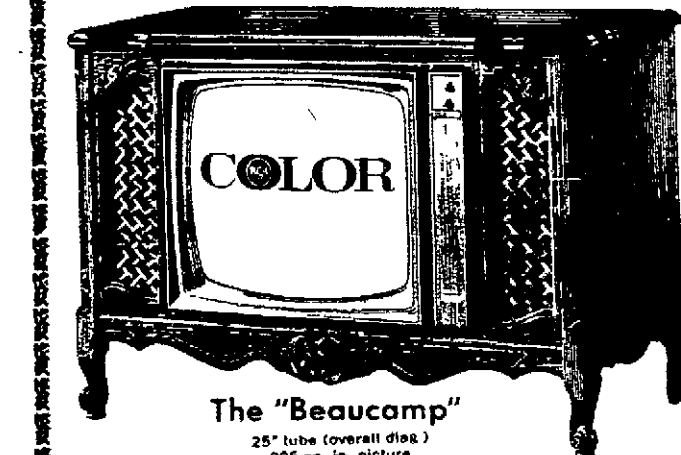

Mortenson said he intends to continue the policies of the Association as they have been evaluated in recent years.

"He is leaving some pretty big boots to fill," he said of the departing veteran who founded the Association and was the widely hailed county lobbyist who was generally successful in advocating the counties' causes in legislation during many years.

Mortenson is a native of New Lisbon, Juneau County, graduated from the University of Wisconsin, served in the U.S. Navy during World War II, and before he launched his private law practice was a draftsman for the legislative reference bureau. He will take over the Association command on Jan. 1.

Steel Guard Rails Cut 4-Lane Head-on Crash

BY SYLVIA PORTER

On the heavily traveled Saw River Mill Parkway in Westchester County, N.Y., which I use for weekend commuting between Manhattan and our country home, there has not been one cross-over head-on collision fatality so far this year, a glorious round 100 per cent decline from the 10 fatalities in 1964. Instead of tensing up as I once did during this 22-mile drive, I now relax, listen to music, casually exchange gripes with my 17-year-old daughter.

The reason: a tough but resilient steel safety guard rail was installed in 1965 to separate two-way traffic on this four-lane highway and to make head-on collisions almost impossible.

On the 13.5 mile Waterson Expressway in Louisville, Ky., fatalities from head-on collisions have plunged 93 per cent since installation of a median guard rail. On the 131-mile New rate has declined 43 per cent since installation of the barrier. On the 12.4 mile Mill Creek Expressway in Cincinnati, O., the reduction in fatalities has been 52.7 per cent.

The steel guard rail to eliminate the risk of cross-over head-on collisions is now into its period of greatest growth on state highways, toll roads and even Interstate highways, according to the first annual in total motor fatalities. report on steel safety barriers. — Since 1946, this type of installation of a median guard

lives, nearly as great a toll as the combined U.S. battle deaths in World War I (53,513) and the Korean War (33,629).

Problem Is Urgent

There is no disputing the urgency of the problem. While little can be done to eliminate the danger that cars will stray into opposing lanes on two or three-lane roads, much can be done to remove the threat on four or more lane highways.

Of the 69,273 miles of four or more lane highways in the U.S., a high 11,303 are separated by no more than painted lines. It is not known how many of the remaining 57,970 miles, described as "divided" highway, have traversable medians over which vehicles can pass. But it is known that low curbs and narrow earth or grass medians can be jumped far too easily. It is important to the welfare of the nation and the legislator therefore is "justified in humoring them, even though he may disapprove."

He said he didn't consider the endless battle in Congress over

civil rights issue of the 1940s —

as of fundamental importance and so would "follow the views of the people of my state."

But, he said, on an issue as important as supporting the

tuent felt.

Fulbright has needed presidents other than Johnson. In 1958 he called Eisenhower's foreign policy a "drift to disaster."

And when the Republicans gained control of Congress in

dent Harry S. Truman resign

after appointing a Republican secretary of state to succeed him. There was no vice president then.

Little Chute GI Wins Bronze Star Award

A Little Chute "GI" was awarded the Bronze Star with a "V" device Nov. 25 for his heroic action while participating in an engagement with the Viet Cong Aug. 25.

According to official reports Pfc. Thomas G. Weyenberg, 21, 606 S. Taylor St., was in a multi-battalion road clearance operation near Bini Dunong province when his outfit received a call to support a unit during a heavy engagement with the enemy.

Weyenberg's unit was halted by a barrage of small arms and automatic weapons fire. He was lost from his unit and in trying to reunify with his command he was blown from his feet by the concussion of a Viet Cong mortar burst.

Fired Into Enemy
The report stated, "though wounded himself, Weyenberg saw others in similar condition and aided them to an armored personnel carrier. He then found an unmanned .50 caliber machine gun and, placing himself in an open position, fired into the enemy. During the act Weyenberg was again wounded. Despite the additional injuries he continued to man the weapon. His action was largely responsible for the rout of the hostile force."

His citation read: "Pfc. Weyenberg's outstanding display of aggressiveness, devotion to duty and personal bravery is in keeping with the finest tradition of the military service and reflects great credit upon himself, the 1st Infantry Division and the United States Army."

Weyenberg has been in the service about 18 months.

sive universities concentrating on research, public service, and graduate work well beyond undergraduate instructional efforts may be fully demonstrated.

Consideration Given

The board suggests that consideration be given to existing state universities which have broad basic strengths and almost immediate potential for success when deliberations are to be conducted in regard to the establishment of such institutions.

"The board of regents points out that in the populous Fox River Valley WSU-O most clearly and closely approaches the qualifications for quickly and efficiently becoming a university of such dimensions."

The Oshkosh current enrollment base, its quality faculty (42 per cent holding doctor's degrees), student services, and unique location in the state's second fastest growing area, breadth of academic offerings, the strength of actual and potential graduate studies and other factors provide an outlook for development into a "broadly conceived institution," it was said.

Similar Potential

The regents were told that Wisconsin State University-Whitewater in the southeast provides a similar potential in relation to the newly-authorized Racine-Kenosha area UW campus, although the Whitewater location is not as "fortuitous" as that of Oshkosh.

In the general review of the Oshkosh school and its prospects, the regents were reminded that it is the most rapidly growing institution in the system, that it has grown 300 per cent in the last five years and will reach an enrollment of 18,000 by 1975.

(That figure is more optimistic than the latest projections of the Coordinating Committee for Higher Education, which suggested a figure of about 17,000 by 1980, against about 8,000 at that time for the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay.)

The detailed planning report was written by Robert DeZonia, assistant director of the state university system, who also highlighted existing and desired plans for campus and curriculum enlargement.

Lawrence Students to Act in Miracle Play

"Le Miracle de Theophile," a 13th century miracle play, will be presented by a group of Lawrence University student actors at 7:30 p.m. today and Wednesday in the Lawrence Experimental Theatre. The French language production will be open to the public without charge.

Appleton Director

Director of the play is Sue Campbell, Appleton, a Lawrence senior. Miss Campbell translated the drama into modern French as a language and theatre department project.

"Le Miracle de Theophile" was written about 1275 by Rutebauf, a wandering poet. Theophile lived in the 6th century, and like the legendary Faust, was said to have entered a pact with the devil from which, unlike Faust, he later escaped.

Show Devils

Authentic sets, costumes and action mark the production. Manifestations of devils, the drawing of "magic circles" and thunder and lightning effects have been incorporated to create the historic miracle plays once given on the steps of French cathedrals. Costume design is by Anne Glaerner, Lawrence Theatre designer.

Municipalities Trade Ideas at Convention

'Munimatch' Service Offers Solutions To Urban Problems

BY WILLIAM C. CAREY

Post-Crescent Staff Writer
LAS VEGAS, Nev. — "Munimatch," an innovation at the Congress of American Cities here where more than 4,500 municipal officials — mayors and council members — are helping each other solve governmental problems, got off to a successful start.

Munimatch was devised by the staff of the National League of Cities in early November. It helps to match municipal problems with solutions, coming up with firsthand experiences of large and small cities throughout the country.

The "Operation Munimatch" service control center has been getting strong play at Congress headquarters at the Dunes Hotel.

Members of the Wisconsin delegation were observed checking in with Munimatch, the latter something like a quasi question-and-answer space age brain.

Check Topic List

In early November, delegates coming to the Congress were asked by the League to check from a list of 50 popular inquiry topics those they have had experience with in government, and return the solutions and ideas by Nov. 18.

"Munimatch has been a great success and will help us in preparing documents for city officials which will be available to them for informational purposes between now and next year's Congress," observed Patrick Healey, executive secretary of the League.

Many topics in Munimatch are not strangers to the men responsible for operating governments throughout the Fox Cities region.

They range from annexation, of dogs chased children on their way to school.

The constable explained that there is a town ordinance which requires dogs be kept tied up or under control during winter as well as summer months

GREAT MONUMENTS

IWO JIMA

The flag six men raised atop Mt. Suribachi on the tiny Pacific island of Iwo Jima cost 5,000 American lives and 20,000 Japanese. It was a small victory in a large war. Yet on that island men met responsibility for the lives and for the way of life of their countrymen back home. This responsibility gave them the courage to fight the battle of Iwo Jima... "Uncommon valor was a common virtue."

Elks, Guests Party for Charity

Last year 55 families had happier Christmases because members of Elks 337 and their guests attended the club's annual Charity Ball. Committee members hope that this season's event, held Saturday evening at the Elks Club, will provide funds for the same number of holiday gifts.

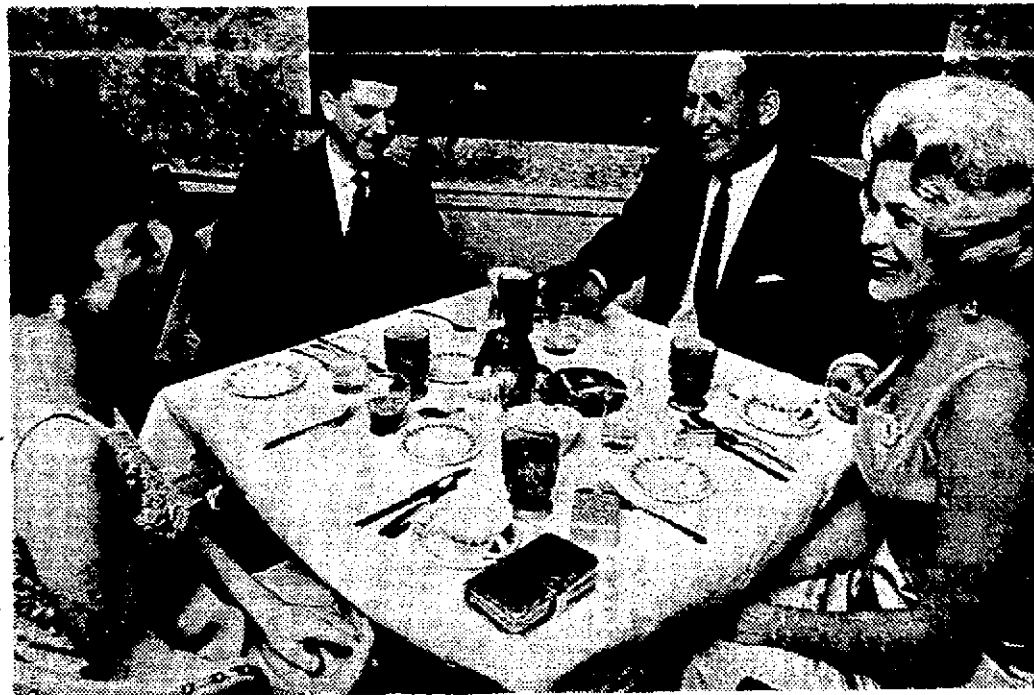

Included in the baskets distributed to families chosen by city and county agencies are about 20 food items for Christmas dinner and gifts for each child in the family. To prevent duplication of gifts, each civic, fraternal and religious organization files its list of those in need at this particular time with the Red Cross, which serves as a clearing house. The Elks Club also makes a last minute check with Red Cross the day before Christmas to be sure no one has been left out.

Begins Season
The party, which included dinner, is one of the first important events on the holiday social calendar. Committee members decked the club in the trappings of the season, with a huge flocked tree decorated with gold satin ornaments in the middle of the ballroom. Smaller trees were on the stage behind the band. The stairway was adorned with rope chains of fir, tied with large ribbons. From the ballroom ceiling hung mobiles in gold and silver.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Acker were chairmen of the Charity Ball, assisted by the Leroy Frosts, Dennis Grundmans, E. J. Kelleys, Henry Lewises, Edward Pierres, Lester Deltgens and I. C. Robertses.

Ribbon Roses Were sold by the committee to add to the Christmas basket fund. Above, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Acker, party chairmen, sell a corsage to committee members Mr.

Employment Fulfills Needs Outside Home

"Is there a pay check for me?" is a question being asked by women today. Figures indicate 45 per cent of all women, work sometime during the year, according to Viola Wilkinson, family life specialist at the University of Wisconsin.

These jobs are not necessarily 40 hour week jobs. Some are

Mrs. Wilkinson. "The woman may need to seek employment to provide basic necessities for her family due to death, illness or divorce. Because of the rising cost of living, she may want to provide 'extras' for the family such as music lessons, special education, new appliances or furniture for the home. The family will decide whether these 'extras' are necessary."

Some women may go to work to make use of special talents and education. Perhaps they are drafted into a former profession. Other women feel that a job helps them meet needs for self-fulfillment. The challenge of worthwhile activity outside the home helps meet their needs as a person.

Most women are working for financial gains for the present, but some are using paid employment to provide greater security for the future. They are building up saving accounts, insurance policies and retirement funds.

New Classes Scheduled for Session Two

Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Muggleton, 400 S. Court, celebrated their 55th wedding anniversary at a formal tea Saturday at the St. Paul Home, Kaukauna, where he is a patient.

Mr. Muggleton, formerly president and vice chairman of the board of the Combined Locks Paper Co., now called Combined Mills, retired in September, 1965. He had previously served four years as mill manager and then spent several years with Consolidated Papers, Inc., at Wisconsin Rapids. In 1940 he was named vice president and general manager at Combined Mills. He holds many clay coating application rights used by industry both in the U.S. and abroad.

The Muggletons have been active in civic and fine arts programs in the area. Their daughter, Mrs. Jeri Patterson, lives in New York City, N. Y.

GI Jill Recalls Radio Programs

By JEAN HELLER

SCARSDALE, N.Y. (AP) — A soldier's name for his girl was Jill. And because they were enlisted men, and wanted to discourage the brass from claiming her, they declared her Government issue and christened her "GI Jill."

"Hi ya fellas. This is GI Jill. Of the jivin' Jills. The jukebox Jills. These are the records that were the most requested on your local station record shows back home, the records you have in your own library. So gather a bit closer."

For seven years — 1943-1950 — GI Jill used her seven-day-a-week radio show to help make life more pleasant for American servicemen around the world.

Today GI Jill, whose real name is Marty Werner, lives in Scarsdale, N.Y., the wife of Mort Werner, a vice president of the National Broadcasting Co. and the mother of a 19-year-old daughter she has lovingly named Jill.

'Most Important'
She remembers her GI Jill work as "the most important thing I've ever done in my life." In the moments she can spare from her duties as a housewife, she is writing a screenplay about Jill's life.

Jill often had company when she did her shows. Bob Hope, Bing Crosby, Tommy Dorsey and Frank Sinatra dropped by as often as they could.

Mrs. Werner keeps a small wooden box in the bedroom of her house. It contains a few trinkets that have survived since her radio days.

There is a bracelet made of the broken window of a downed airplane, and another of an almost weightless metal alloy used in airplanes. There is a heart-shaped pendant inscribed

When the party's over, you'll find the "think big" formula also means fewer dishes to wash, less to pick up. It leaves you happy and relaxed, with pleasant memories of a party you were able to enjoy with your guests.

Family Washing Done in Ocean

The Tucker Thompson family of Hawaii, which lives and travels aboard a sailing ship, handles its laundry in a ship-shape way.

Their clothes are thoroughly sudsed with detergent, then placed in a nylon bag which is tethered to the ship and tossed overboard where the towing provides the necessary agitation and rinsing.

Wash-wear clothes that require minimal care are Mrs. Thompson's standard choice.

Lemons For Beauty

To keep your skin clear and fair you need the natural cleansing and bleaching properties of lemon. Ask your druggist for a bottle of lemon Jelvyn, the latest type skin freshener that beautiful women throughout the world are now using. Lemon Jelvyn braces and conditions the skin to a beautiful new clarity; its fine grained texture; its excellent toning properties help stimulate the surface cells, clear out stubborn, blemish-inducing and pore-clogging particles and smooth the skin to beautiful clarity. Lemon Jelvyn is ideal for quick complexion cleansing and two capfuls in your final shampoo will give a sparkling shine to your hair. Lemon Jelvyn is a must for complexion beauty.

Fanciful Approach

Give small cooked shrimp a spicy marinade; use the flavorful seafood with avocado for a luncheon salad.

"props" may be added from the five and ten cent store: Spanish dolls, wrought iron angels, tiny Christmas trees.

The cocktail solution is simple. This year, serve Spanish Christmas punch, a big, robust drink made with very dry sherry from Spain. The advantages are many. It is easily prepared in advance, serves up a good supply in short order, and is most economical. It is a drink ladies will enjoy as well as men and it frees both host and hostess so that they may enjoy their guests.

Spanish Punch

- 2 bottles very dry Spanish sherry
- 1 six-ounce can frozen orange juice concentrate
- 1 pint red wine
- 8 or 10 valencia oranges
- 1 quart club soda
- Whole cloves

The day before peel oranges and spice with cloves. Combine sherry, orange juice (reconstituted) and red wine. Marinate oranges in mixture. Chill in refrigerator. When ready to serve pour sherry mixture over block of ice in punch bowl. Add soda. (Optional: Decorate punch glasses with slivers of orange.) Makes 36 punch glass servings.

'Think Big' in Planning Yuletide Menus, Parties

Christmas, a time for good will and good cheer, is more often a time for panic — of rushing, planning, shopping, cooking, cleaning. And somewhere in between, you're supposed to have fun.

This year, relax. You can entertain elegantly, elaborately, with only half the effort. The secret? Think Big! Then slow down to a gentle pace and have more exciting holiday parties than ever.

Think Big when it comes to planning the menu. Whether you are serving turkey or ham, the vegetables and "fixins" can be big one-dish casseroles, prepared in advance and placed in the oven a half hour before serving.

Purchase Staples
Think Big about time-saving devices. Investigate, for example, the many delicious canned varieties before you start peeling pounds of sweet potatoes. And don't overlook the improvements in frozen vegetables, available now in big, entertainment-size bags. Incidentally, a quick way to glamorize frozen vegetables is to cook them according to directions and then stir in a can of cream of mushroom soup.

Think Big when preparing your shopping list. Purchasing large quantities of the staples means fewer trips to the super market, less time on long holiday check-out lines. If you're not sure about the salt supply, buy another box. It keeps forever.

Wasted Effort
Most important, Think Big when it comes to cocktails. More fuss, time and bother go into preparing everyone's "favorites" than into the rest of the meal. And it's effort wasted. (If a guest prefers his own special dry martini, can you prepare it as well as he does himself?) Remember too, bar-tender chores fall upon the man of the house who usually has set the stage. Proper Care Lengthens Lifetime of Men's Shoes

A man's shoes, just as any other part of the wardrobe, will last much longer and give better wear if they are cared for properly.

"Many men, however, aren't getting enough mileage out of their shoes simply because they don't care for them properly," one designer has noted. Since mistreatment can materially shorten the potential life of a well-made shoe.

Proper care should be given to footwear.

Proper Care Tips

Polish shoes after each wearing with a soft cloth to remove dust and dirt. Use a good grade of polish at intervals frequent enough to maintain a good gloss. Select a shade of polish which is as near as possible to the color of the shoes. Pastes are better than liquids since liquids have a drying effect on leather that causes checking and cracking.

Remember, a little polish goes a long way so don't apply too much. The thinner the polish is spread over the shoe the better the shine. Also, using polish sparingly will keep shoes from being caked with excess polish which will impare leather's ability to breathe and will lead to early deterioration.

To keep leather soft and supple, it's a good idea to use saddle-soap on shoes once a month. Saddle soap usually serves as well as polish for achieving a rich protective sheen.

Don't Spit-Polish

A soft flexible rag, a good fox hair brush and a little elbow grease are all needed for polishing. Wash the brush and rags often to remove wax and dirt accumulation.

Do not spit-polish your shoes. Though it produces a deep luster, spit-shining is very bad for shoes. Working saliva into the leather dries natural oils, thereby causing cracks and checks. Furthermore, the hard gloss finish a spit-shine leaves fills in pores to the extent where the leather cannot breathe. The "hard ragging" used in spit-shining causes heat that burns the leather fibers.

Use Shoe Trees

If shoes get wet, in the rain or in the snow, put shoe trees in them when you get home and, if they are finished leather, work a liberal amount of saddle soap into the leather before setting them out to dry. Never use saddle soap on suede or "naked leather" or dry shoes at artificial heat, but let them dry slowly at room temperature.

Never use neatsfoot oil on footwear. The oil soaks into the footwear and stays there, rendering shoes incapable of taking a shine again.

Rotate shoes daily. Never wear the same pair of shoes two days running. By rotating shoes the life of each pair is increased.

Repair Worn Heels

Always use shoe trees but allow the shoes to stand overnight before putting in the shoe trees. Wooden shoe trees are better than metal or synthetic ones because wood absorbs any perspiration dampness left in the shoe.

Repairs should be made before wear becomes too extensive. A worn heel sets the foot off balance and is a poor support for the body. Unless broken stitching is repaired immediately, permanent damage may occur through the action of the foot working against loose seams.

With proper care a pair of shoes will last longer and provide good comfortable service.

Flowers Top Bows

Top your gaily wrapped Christmas gift for the woman or daughter in your life with a few flowers. They also may be worn as a corsage during the holiday.

NEW WAY TO BE SUDDENLY SLIM FOR CHRISTMAS

Los Angeles:—Are you a woman whose figure is on the good side but might look perfect? You'll be thrilled by the new easy way science has discovered for you to become Suddenly Slim and yet completely comfortable. If you're more than 15 pounds overweight or your waistline is larger than 32 inches, then this idea is not for you. If your weight problem falls within this range, then you can realize a new, smoother figure today, without diet or exercise.

Suddenly Slim is an all-new kind of 4-oz. girdle constructed of science fibers. One startling innovation is the sheer nylon front panel. This is permanently stiffened by a science process and cannot give or sag. It's surrounded by a slimming action border. A featherstitched panel down each side of this girdle will contour your hips if they are a problem.

The girdle itself is of a "wonder" Lycra spandex blend. It's a new power net consisting of nylon, acetate and spandex. It is so comfortable, but has such slimming strength, it gives your figure everything that's possible with a foundation.

"Suddenly Slim," in both girdle and panty versions, is the peak achievement of the California designer-genius, Olga.

West opened the jack of diamonds and declarer won with dummy's ace. Thinking he could afford the luxury of one round of trumps, declarer led dummy's low trump to the ace. It was an expensive luxury.

South led a low heart to dummy's queen and returned a heart. East played the nine, and South played low in the hope that the ace would fall early. This was correct play, since it would not have helped South to put up the king of hearts.

East cleverly returned the queen of spades, forcing out South's king. If South then drew East's last trump he would have to lose three heart tricks; and if South ruffed a heart in dummy he would lose a trump trick to the nine.

Best Return

East could not defeat the contract by returning his lower trump. South would let it ride to dummy's ten, would later ruff a heart with the jack and could still draw East's last trump with the king.

South would make his contract if he resisted the temptation to draw trumps. Instead, he should lead the queen of hearts from dummy at the second trick.

Even if East got the chance to take a trump out of dummy, South would still manage to ruff two hearts with dummy's two remaining trumps. Declarer would thus lose only one heart, one trump and one club.

Mistletoe, Flowers Brighten Holidays

A novel suggestion for the holiday season is a kissing ball made of florists' foam and covered with mistletoe, tiny bits of boxwood, or other foliage and fresh flowers.

The fresh flowers may be any of those that fit into a given color scheme. Possibly one of the most attractive choices is tiny, tiny, pale pink roses with an open, waxy-white gardenia for accent. The roses blend and point up the gray-green waxiness of the mistletoe. However, almost any small flower might be used effectively.

The preparation of a kissing ball is extremely simple.

Family Project

Any florist will prepare one on order, using any flowers specified. If it seems fun to make the kissing ball at home — and this can be a very happy family activity — the only materials required are the ball of florists' foam, thin wire, toothpicks, and flowers.

The flowers are wired to the picks and then the picks are inserted into the foam — each one close to the next so that no foam shows. Intersperse the flowers with "twigs" of mistletoe and of small-leaved foliage.

A ribbon may be attached — also with the picks — to the top of the ball as a hanger. Another ribbon may trim the bottom.

Where to hang the kissing ball? This is perfect in a bay window where it serves to beautify the house both inside and out. Or it may be hung in an archway between two conjoining rooms where it is perhaps more convenient for the purpose for which it was intended!

Italy's Women Soldiers To March in High Style

By JAMES M. LONG
ROME (AP) — The Italian government is considering forming a women's military corps. The first big question is not what they will do, but what they will wear.

If Latin ladies march to war, they expect to do it to a wolf whistle and not to the roll of drums.

Some of Italy's best known couturiers — Schubert, the Fontana Sisters, Carosa, Fourquet, Antonelli and Sarli — have rushed to their aid. They came out with sketches for a complete wardrobe for the women warriors.

Not one of the stylists suggested anything resembling Brunehilde's winged helmet or Joan of Arc's plated armor. The emphasis was strictly on the feminine — and knees were showing.

Only three of twelve proposed uniforms had slacks. Sarli suggested a sporty jacket that ended in culottes bobbed off well above knee boots.

Several designs had the girls in almost knee-length skirts; skirts were above the knee, even if not quite mini-brief.

One outfit proposed for a women's Alpine auxiliary was a snappy model that would look well this winter at St. Moritz or Sun Valley.

Most of the jackets had a double-breasted look, achieved either by buttons, pockets or pleats.

The designers steered well away from the severe, mannish cut uniforms that caused such a squawk four years ago when Italy's first women's police force was formed.

The flat-chested, low-heeled look kept enrollment lagging until authorities finally hiked the hemline to the knee and allowed fullness in the jackets to provide more room where it would do the most good.

That taught the authorities what to expect if they want to form a military legion of women.

Super-Automated-Market Designed for Space Age

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Housewives of the not-too-distant future are going to find their local supermarkets alive with automated efficiency, but as friendly and warm as the dimly remembered general store. The supermarket, center of the suburban shopping center, is going modern in a magnificent way.

Probably the first thing to greet the space age shopper's eyes when she enters the store will be the spacious, clean-cut aisles. . . carpeted, no less! Not only does the carpeting mean less foot fatigue, but it will also mute the annoying noises now so much part and parcel of grocery shopping. This carpeting will enable the Mrs. to shop more leisurely and in greater comfort.

Other exciting innovations are in the shopping cart. Wall-to-wall carpeting has resulted in easier-to-manuever carts that have swivel wheels equipped with "locks." And faster check-outs are assured with special unloading devices that raise the basket and unload the packages on the counter.

Invisible Benefits
But not all the space age benefits awaiting the Mrs. are visible. What will really make her shopping task a breezy delight is behind the scenes — a store control center, chock full of "friendly machines." The store control will free personnel from routine details and enable them to give more personal and efficient service to the customer.

Electronic equipment will enable the store manager to keep his shelves well-stocked without devoting hours to in-condenser in a remote freezing compartment to a cartnapper in the parking lot. Catching a cartnapper won't offend a legitimate customer, but it does mean that shoppers won't have to wait anymore for a shopping basket to be available. The board is rigged to ring the manager at home if trouble should occur during the night; otherwise it lights up to be spotted by the manager's assistant.

If, for example, the trouble were rising temperature in a freezer, the control center operator can alert the proper personnel via radio pager, privately. This means that neither shoppers nor uninvolved personnel will be inconvenienced. And such fast trouble-spotting almost eliminates the risk of buying melted ice cream, spoiled meat, sour milk and rancid butter.

Friendly Attention

Of all these improvements, perhaps the most impressive, is the extra attention store managers will be able to give their customers. Getting to know them and their desires is the store manager's prime concern and with electronic equipment freeing him from routine details, he now has the time. What this means is that the supermarket will be big enough to provide the friendly concern of a small store. Customers thus have someone to take their requests to and be assured of interested attention, whether they want a specific brand to be carried, or a change of location for a product.

Elaborate Systems
The public address system, itself, is a big plus for shoppers, contributing to the pleasant atmosphere of the store with recorded music, and also announcing at regular intervals various department "specials." A big feature of the store control center is an elaborate alarms reporting system. It can spot trouble anywhere, of almost any type, from a faulty

Imaginative Dash
How about serving meatballs for tomorrow's shopper assure a new era of old general store warmth, now that the friendly computer is going to market.

The Space Age Shopper will find ultra-modern conveniences in the supermarket of the future. Wider aisles, carpeted floors, conveyor-belt shelves and swivel-wheeled shopping carts are a few of the improvements anticipated by present designers. Electronic equipment will enable store personnel to give more attention to the customer and less to routine details.

Auxiliary Approves Walker Purchases

HILBERT — Forty-five members, representing the Calumet County American Legion Auxiliary Council, approved purchase of hospital walking equipment for each of the six units present.

Posts represented were Brillion, Darboy, New Holstein, Sherwood, Stockbridge, and Hilbert.

The equipment will be purchased from proceeds realized from a recent magazine sale campaign. In addition each unit has a complete hospital bed, folding wheelchair and adjustable crutches which are available to all county persons without cost.

The group approved a cash donations to the current drive for retarded children and to Camp American Legion, and rehabilitation and rest center for veterans.

Mrs. Lloyd Haberman, Brillion, historian and Americanism chairman for the Department of Wisconsin, talked on the national project of sending a social studies teacher from each state to a Freedom Foundation forum at Valley Forge.

Girl Humiliated by Father's Drunken Behavior Asks Help

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am so mortified, I could die. I'm a senior in high school and I am also president of our "Tri bi Y" Club. Last night the meeting was at my house.

My father came home about 9:30 — roaring drunk. He sat himself down in the middle of our meeting and took over. When I tried to get him to leave the room, he went on a crying jag, said nobody wanted him around any more and that the whole world was against him.

Then he became abusive to my friends, called them names and told them to get out of the house. Everyone left, without even eating the refreshments I had worked so hard to prepare. Tomorrow this humiliating experience will be the talk of the school.

My father has been a heavy drinker for as long as I can remember, but this is the first time he has done anything like this. Please tell me how I can stop hating him. And tell me hating him, not for his sake, but for your sake.

Sometimes an alcoholic must hit bottom before he is ready to admit he has a problem and seek the help he needs. Maybe this incident will be the turning point in your father's life. Let's hope so.

In the meantime, go back to school and hold up your head. You are not responsible for your father's behavior.

Look into Alateen, a group for teen-agers who must live with alcoholic parents. Alateen is a branch of Alcoholics Anonymous and you will find it listed in the phone book under A.A. Good luck to you, honey, and chin up.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have an answer for "Getting Notions" — the woman whose husband falls asleep in front of the TV and shows no sign of life after 8 p.m. She confessed that almost every man she sees is beginning to look good to her.

I had the problem many years ago, and this is how it was resolved. I had seven children in 12 years. I did all my own house work, took a part-time job, not by choice but because I had to help pay the bills. My husband found something wrong with every place he worked. Either the people were beneath him socially, or the work was too hard, or the hours were too long or the job was too far from the house.

He drifted from one thing to another and finally he went into "semi-retirement" at age 45. How do you like that for a healthy man with plenty of ability? Unfortunately, he had no interest in anything but sex.

With the responsibilities of seven children, plus the house and the job, I simply didn't have the time or the strength for "getting notions." So you see, Ann Landers, sometimes necessity forces a solution on us. — MRS. B.

Dear Mrs. B.: I can't see any solution in your letter, dear. It looks as if you have merely exchanged one set of problems for another. But thank you for writing.

Is alcoholism a disease? How can the alcoholic be treated? Is there a cure? Read the booklet "Alcoholism — Hope and Help," by Ann Landers. Enclose 35 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Homemaker Assisted by Modern Electric Range

Christmas wouldn't be Christmas without holiday cookies, a festive fruit cake, or tempting home-made candies. But much as the family enjoys these holiday specialties, they do mean a lot of extra work for mom. A modern electric range, which simplifies all cooking, is a perfect Christmas gift for a homemaker who likes to cook and bake, especially if she has it in time for her heavy holiday schedule.

Modern electric ranges have precise temperature controls which maintain an even heat to assure the best cooking results. Most models have at least one thermostatic surface unit which automatically stays at pre-set temperature all thru the cooking process. No time or steps are wasted on heat readjustment. Even delicacies like sauces and custards cook to perfection without burning or boiling over. Instant-heat elements cook food faster to preserve their taste and nutritional value, and water boils more quickly. The range monitors the food while the cook is free to wrap presents or entertain her guests.

Easy to Clean

For banquet-sized holiday meals, double ovens available with all new model electric ranges are especially convenient. Because of the extra capacity and separate temperature controls, an entire Christmas dinner — turkey, vegetables and dessert can be cooked simultaneously. The smaller oven is handy for warming hot breads, rolls and muffins. The easy-clean features of electric ovens are important all year round, but especially at Christmas when there's little time for clean-ups. Ovens have disposable foil liners, teflon-coated or chrome walls or pullout drawer. Some new models have self-cleaning ovens with a high-heat cycle that automatically burns off all grease and grime. Oven doors lift off, and racks and shelves are removable for quick cleaning at the sink.

Large Choice

Cleaning ease has come to the range top, too. All models have stain-resistant finishes that sponge clean. Heating elements tilt up or lift off, control dials can be pulled out, and drip rims are recessed to catch spilled liquids. Food fragments can't accumulate or harden, because they burn right off the electric coils.

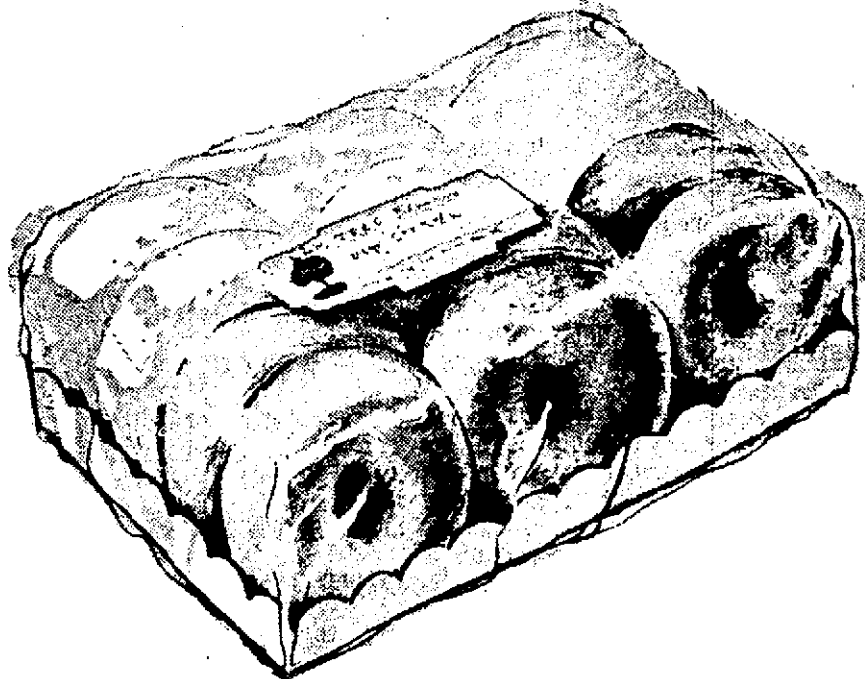

There are a variety of electric ranges to choose from: freestanding, drop-ins which slide onto a low base, built-ins which have surface elements set into a countertop, and ranges with eye-level ovens that save stooping and bending. Wall ovens have the same advantage and can be placed in any convenient area.

Frank Panzer Retires as Senate President Pro Tem

Emeritus Position Created; Robert Knowles Is Successor

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — Seventy-six-year-old Frank Panzer, a member of the Legislature since 1931 and Senate president pro tem since 1947, stepped aside Monday to make room for younger Republican leadership.

Panzer
Senate president emeritus — was created by GOP leaders for the veteran lawmaker in a four-hour caucus here Monday afternoon.

The newest face in the Senate majority line-up is Robert Warren, 41, who represents Calumet and part of Brown county. He was elected assistant majority leader behind the new majority leader, Sen. Jerris Leonard, 35, Bayside, and the new president pro tem, Sen. Robert Knowles, 50, New Richmond.

'Time to Retire'
The caucusing Republicans went through the formality of electing Panzer to his longtime post as president pro tem. Panzer then made a speech to the peaceful caucus stating "It was time to retire to make room for younger men."

Knowles likened the new president emeritus position to that of "chairman of the board." He said Panzer would normally sit in the presiding officer's chair in the Senate.

The move upstairs by Panzer had the effect of moving up the remaining Senate GOP leadership by one notch. The governor's brother has been majority leader since 1953 and Leonard had been assistant majority leader since 1959.

Knowles, an insurance and real estate executive, said he would continue his active leadership of the Senate, but that the floor work of carrying out the GOP program would pass to Leonard and Warren. The new GOP leadership appeared more than happy at the prospects for GOP legislation with the advantage of a 21-12 majority in the Senate.

First Term
Warren's move into the ranks of leadership came mid-way during his first term in the legislature. He is a Green Bay attorney who served as Brown County district attorney from 1961 to 1964.

Emerging after the caucus, Knowles said that there had been no contests and that all the elections had been "unanimous."

The new GOP caucus chairman is Sen. Ernest C. Keppler, Sheboygan, and the new caucus

Standing Army Alternative to Draft Presented

Selective Service National Conference Hears Economists

CHICAGO (AP) — A national draft conference, its discussion of the workings of the Selective Service System behind it, turns today to an alternative: an all-volunteer standing army.

Two economists agree the nation can well afford one.

Prof. Milton Friedman of the University of Chicago and Walter Y. Oi of the University of Washington argued in papers presented to the conference that the social and economic costs of the draft now pose far greater costs to the country than would a voluntary army.

Their views are expected to be sharply challenged by other delegates to the conference at the University of Chicago.

Four-Day Meeting
The Friedman-Oi papers led off the third day of the four-day meeting.

More than 100 scholars, government specialists and students are attending the meeting — seeking ways to avoid alleged inequities in the present system to which attention has been drawn by the growing demands of the Viet Nam war.

Friedman, who served as Barry Goldwater's economic adviser during the 1964 presidential campaign, said having a voluntary army would:

— Produce a lower turnover in the armed services and permit more intensive training.

— Preserve the freedom of individuals to serve or not to serve and, at the same time, prevent hasty marriages.

Proper Function
— "Permit colleges and universities to pursue their proper educational function, freed alike from the incubus of the half-million or more young men who would be better off at work than in school."

Oi, who did much of his research while working as a consultant to the Defense Department, computed that a voluntary force of 2.7 million men would cost an added $4 billion yearly — a total he describes as "entirely feasible."

Even if the number in the armed services climbed to 3.3 million — roughly the total now on active duty — "the full economic cost of the draft would climb as rapidly as the cost of the voluntary force," Oi said.

The conferees seemed badly split on the question of whether the draft systems should continue deferments.

Italian Parents Say They Are Too Poor to Send Children to School

ROME (AP) — A group of hill country farmers appealed to the Constitutional Court today to spare them from conviction for failing to send their children to Italy's compulsory public schools.

They said they were too poor to pay the costs and the compulsory schooling was not free despite guarantees by the constitution.

Italian children must be sent to school until they are 14. Most of the children in the case were in the sixth grade.

Chancellor Won't Bow to Demands Of Student Boycotters at Berkeley

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Backed by an overwhelming faculty vote, the University of California's chancellor met Monday night with a student committee in an unsuccessful attempt to end a classroom boycott.

After meeting with Chancellor Roger W. Heyns, the student committeemen said they would take a vote to determine whether to continue the strike.

During his first meeting with the committee, Heyns rejected demands that police never again be called to the university, that certain nonstudent political groups be allowed campus rights, and that disciplinary hearings be open. He also refused to promise amnesty for students involved in demonstrations.

The faculty vote had come as Heyns prepared for a special Board of Regents meeting today concerning the boycott.

"We affirm our confidence in the chancellor's leadership and pledge our continued support and cooperation," 795 professors of the Academic Senate voted.

Johnson Prize Bull Brings $1 Per Pound

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson got nearly $1 a pound for bull on the hoof — but don't worry about a jump in steak prices.

It was a prize breeding, rather than beef, animal named LBJ Colorado Husker C26 that sold at auction Monday for $1,700 as Johnson watched. The 2-year-old bull weighed 1,770 pounds.

The auction average was $350 to $400.

The Johnson animal had several points to recommend it. It came from the presidential acres 15 miles west of here, but probably more important to bidders, it was the certified grand champion of the Blanco County Hereford Association.

Johnson, who raises cattle for breeding purposes rather than for beef, has about 100 head on the LBJ Ranch.

Marine Presented With Highest Honor

Sgt. Robert O'Malley Receives Medal From LBJ for Gallantry

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson today awarded the Medal of Honor to a thrice-wounded Marine who killed at least eight Viet Cong in a rice paddy fire fight.

Sgt. Robert Emmett O'Malley, 23, of Woodside, N.Y., is the 21st Marine to earn the Medal of Honor in Viet Nam. He is cited for gallantry near Chu Lai during Operation Starlight Aug. 18, 1965.

O'Malley, who has been living with his parents since recuperating from wounds of that engagement, was put back on active duty just for today — so he could wear dress blues for the medal award ceremony at the Austin post office.

His Citation
His citation reads in part: "O'Malley raced across an open rice paddy to a trench line where the enemy forces were located. Jumping into the trench, he attacked the Viet Cong with his rifle and grenades, and singly killed eight of the enemy."

"He then led his squad to the assistance of an adjacent Marine unit which was suffering heavy casualties. Continuing to press forward, he reloaded his weapon and fired with telling effect into the enemy emplacement."

"Ordered to an evacuation point by an officer, Cpl. O'Malley gathered his besieged and badly wounded squad and boldly led them under fire to a helicopter for withdrawal."

"Although three times wounded in this encounter, and facing imminent death from a fanatic and determined enemy, he steadfastly refused evacuation and continued to cover his squad's boarding of the helicopter while, from an exposed position, he delivered fire against the enemy until his wounded men were evacuated.

"Only then, with his last mission accomplished, did he permit himself to be removed from the battlefield."

Counterfeiting Sentence of Doctor Reduced

CHICAGO (AP) — A federal court has reduced the prison sentence of a physician convicted of conspiring to counterfeit $3 million.

Judge William J. Lynch of U.S. District Court reduced Monday from five to four years the sentence of Dr. Giulio Bruni after Lynch was told a five-year sentence by a Milwaukee federal court on another conviction had been shortened because Bruni served eight months in prison.

Bruni was convicted in Milwaukee April 15, 1965 of passing bogus $20 bills. He was convicted of conspiracy in May 1965 in Chicago.

Bond's Views On Viet Nam Unchanged

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Julian Bond, bolstered by a Supreme Court decision in his bid to claim a seat in the Georgia Legislature, says the long fight has not changed his views on Viet Nam which kept him out of the State House of Representatives.

Elected three times from an Atlanta district, he twice was barred by House members because he endorsed a statement by the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee which accused the United States of aggression in Viet Nam.

At the time, Bond also said he admired the courage of those who burned their draft cards although he would not burn his own.

The Supreme Court ruled unanimously Monday that the Georgia House could not bar the former SNCC officer because of his statements.

Asked if his views had changed, Bond replied, "Exactly the same."

Chief Justice Earl Warren, writing the court's opinion, said the House action "violated Bond's right of free expression under the First Amendment."

Legislators, Warren said, "have an obligation to take positions on controversial political questions so that their constituents can be fully informed by them and be better able to assess their qualifications for office; also so they may be represented in governmental debates by the person they have elected to represent them."

Letter Exchange

Take the required letter from one defined word, substitute the required letter, and come out with the second defined word. For example, if we say, "Examine minus R plus D equals burst," you will then begin with the word "EXPLORE," substitute the letter "D" in its place, and come out with the word "EXPLODE."

1. Confident minus E plus U equals portiere.

2. Rely minus P plus F equals protect.

3. Opposite minus S plus I equals daydream.

4. Exhaust minus N plus E equals hasten.

5. Law minus N plus E equals watercraft.

6. Huge minus M plus P equals calm.

7. Arbitrator minus J plus B equals move.

8. Babbly minus T plus R equals lease.

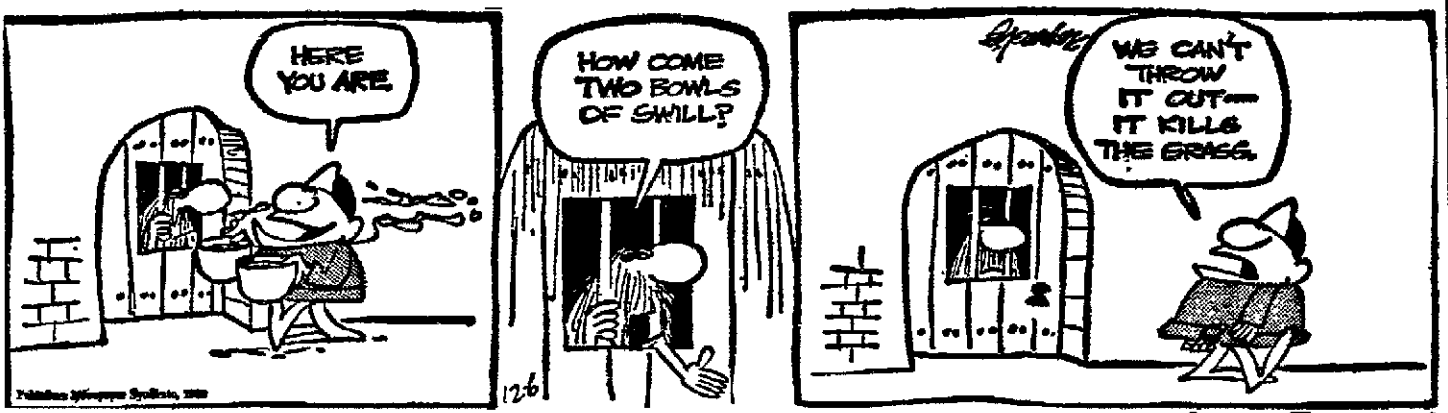

9. Gift minus S plus V equals prohibit.

10. Twinkle minus L plus R equals sterner.

Answers

1. Certain, curtain. 2. Depend, defend. 3. Reverse, reverie. 4. Spend, speed. 5. Canon, canoe. 6. Massive, passive. 7. Judge, budge. 8. Chatter, charter. 9. Present, prevent. 10. Glimmer, grimmer.

Jingo Heaps Praise on Three Valley Directors

They Dared to Bring Above-Average Drama to Students, Communities

BY JINGO
Setting your sights higher than your rifle can shoot is not a very popular practice nowadays.

Although most Americans appear to approve of ambition, they also value achievement. And for the average citizen the most "practical" approach is be congratulated for their raw nerve in venturing to produce a script which has not been pre-sold, pre-digested or even pre-publicized.

The second achievement was the Lawrence University Theatre's staging of Pirandello's "Six Characters in Search of an Author."

Admittedly, this appears to be Pirandello's year for revivals around the country. ("Six Characters" was offered earlier this season at WSU-O, and it might not be a bad idea for area directors to get together and agree to do two different Pirandello plays, rather than the same one.)

Meaningful Drama

But the fact remains that the general level of the direction and ensemble playing was so high as to make this historically important script meaningful and theatrically effective for local audiences. It was a stimulating evening.

Finally, at the Fox Valley Center, Kenneth Anderson and his merry men Friday night unveiled a double bill of "Krap's Last Tape" and "The Bald Soprano." These one-act plays by Beckett and Ionesco, respectively, are by no means unknown, nor is their production a particularly risky enterprise at this stage in the development of absurdist theater.

But they are good, bracing fun, and a welcome relief from the cascade of formula stuff that so often passes for entertainment on today's stage.

'Art of the Desirable'

Jingo realizes that the aims and resources of educational and community theater are not always alike, and that sometimes concessions must be made for the sake of fiscal solvency.

But he fervently hopes that "the art of the possible" will at least occasionally be replaced by "the art of the desirable," so that the fires of experiment and growth may be seen more frequently on Fox Valley stages.

These somewhat melancholy thoughts were occasioned by a series of happy events on the Valley's entertainment scene.

Three Happy Events

For just as Jingo had reconciled himself to sitting through an endless parade of rehearsed Broadway successes — the formulaized and all too familiar fruit of our dwindling professional theater — along came a trio of attractions which restored his faith in the courage of Fox Valley producers.

Most important of the three was, of course, the Green Bay production of "And People All Around . . .", an uncompromising drama about the murder of three civil rights workers in Mississippi.

Written by a veteran playwright and social commentator, George Sklar, and directed by Jack Frisch by special arrangement with the American Playwrights Theater, this script has — hold your breath! — never been staged in metropolitan New York.

A Salute to An Untiring Impresario

BY TV SCOUT

8:30-10 — Channels 2-7-12 — S. Hurok Presents is a special about which concert goers can shout bravo. In this splendid salute to Sol Hurok, the inexhaustible impresario, some of the world's most brilliant artists are brought together: Isaac Stern plays the first movement of Mozart's Violin Concerto Number 3 in G major; Van Cliburn offers Rachmaninoff's third piano concerto in D minor, Opus 30; Maya Plisetskaya dances her famous "dying swan" and then joins members of the Bolshoi Ballet for the fourth act of "Don Quixote;" Andres Segovia plays Bach Gavotte and Etude Number 1 by Villa-Lobos, and Antonio and the Ballets de Madrid perform a Navarre folk dance and a traditional flamenco. Marian Anderson is the cautious, respectful hostess who wraps up the evening with a stirring reading of Aaron Copland's "Lincoln Portrait." Segments were taped in New York, Los Angeles and London.

6:30-7:30 — Channels 4-5 — The Girl from U.N.C.L.E. flops along with another sadistic chiller-diller: "The Roman Lie Affair." Plenty of hammy acting in this one as Lloyd Bochner plays a Gypsy king who gets his kicks and profits by knocking off wealthy shareholders. Gladys Cooper is equally tasty as his fortune-teller mom who always picks the wrong horse.

6:30-7:30 — Channels 2-7-12 — Godfrey Cambridge, the popular Negro comedian, keeps a straight face playing a modern "witch doctor" on Dakarti. Don't get the idea he is a quack, however. He packs a powerful antidote for spider bites and has other tricks up his sleeves. The only trouble is that he makes the natives restless, especially their chief, and is languishing in exile until he comes to the aid of Cheryl Miller.

7:30-8 — Channels 4-5 — You may get a chuckle or two from watching Occasional Wife as its "newlyweds" lock horns with the income tax people. This happens when Peter's boss hires an accountant to do the returns for his office staff and then stages a big winding up everybody can sign their forms. But if you aren't married, how can you lie on a joint return?

7:30-8:30 — Channels 2-7-12 — The Red Skelton Hour employs Allen Funt and his candid camera for some diverting moments in a George Appleby comedy sketch. There's some jokes here over the sale of mini-skirts and some broad humor provided by Abbe Lane, who plays Funt's assistant. The lady also sings: "Strangers in the Night" and "Heat Wave." In the Silent Spot, Red tackles the world's most dangerous mountain.

8-10 — Channels 4-5 — Tuesday Night at the Movies has a Korean War thriller: "The Bridges of Toko-Ri," a vivid treatment of the James Michener novel. Hero is William Holden, a never-say-die pilot. Grace Kelly plays his trusty wife and in the background are Ginger Rogers, Left, star of the Broadway musical "Hello, Dolly," and Miss Ziegfeld of 1966, relinquishes her title and crown to its new owner, Angela Lansbury, who plays the title role in the current musical "Mame." The crowning ceremony took place at the 29th Ziegfeld Club's charity ball last week in New York City. The club originally was founded as a charity organization of former Ziegfeld girls, but now has opened its membership to other women in the entertainment field. (AP Wirephoto)

There's Reason Why 'Bonanza' Liked Best

Other Shows Try 'Family' Scene, but Success Also Due to Universal Appeal

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — After "Bonanza" hit the popularity heights and stayed there, many a producer tried to ring a switch on the show's durable format — a family unit — and some have had considerable success.

There is a family feeling built around "The Virginian" with Shiloh Ranch. "The Big Valley" has a matriarch instead of a Fredric March, Mickey Rooney and Earl Holliman. The tense action, with plenty of soaring and diving jets, involves a mission to knock out a well-defended target.

8:30-9 — Channels 11-6-9 — Prepare yourself for another domestic spat with Love on a Rooftop. Peter Deuel and Judy Carne are once again at their engaging best, quarreling and fussing over "another woman." Gayle Hunnicut plays a shapely airline stewardess, unaware Peter has a wife. She arrives just at the moment when Judy is pondering on whether or not she was a second choice.

9-10 — Channels 11-6-9 — The Fugitive, with plenty of hip chatter and the roaring of motorcycle wheels, cools it with "The Devil's Disciples." Our wandering Richard Kimble wanders into some bad company (yes! again) when he thinks he is rescued from a sheriff's posse by a motorcycle gang. He discovers that his benefactors are as tough as their leather jackets and more than ready to set him up as a fall guy in a murder. Lou Antonio, Bruce Dern and Diana Hyland are prominent.

Dr. Seuss Ready To Invade TV

'Grinch' in Cartoon Form Coming Dec. 18 As Christmas Special

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The Grinch is coming to television, and he may well be followed by Yertle the Turtle and the Cat in the Hat.

As a generation of American children knows, all of the above are characters from the books of Dr. Seuss, the prolific, immensely successful author of stories for tots. His "How the Grinch Stole Christmas" will be a CBS holiday special on Sunday Dec. 18.

Dr. Seuss, a former magazine cartoonist who discovered the gold to be mined in children's books, goes under the name of Ted Geisel in real life. During the past year he has been neglecting his literary duties to commute from his La Jolla, Calif., home to Culver City, where "Frinch" was being drawn by MGM cartoonists.

Full of Animation

"The cartoon work has taken an immense amount of time. The film is in full animation, not the usual kind of stop-action you see on television. It took 25,000 individual drawings to create the half-hour cartoon."

Geisel co-produced "The Grinch" with Chuck Jones, head of the MGM cartoon factory. Their association goes back to World War II when they served together in Frank Capra's animation unit that made training films for the Signal Corps.

Until now, Geisel has declined to release his multifarious characters to television, although he did perform on a live show for the long ago "Omnibus." Only twice before has he allowed his stories to be filmed; George Pal produced a couple in his puppet process, and Warner Bros. filmed "Horton Hatches the Egg."

Pairs With Colbert For Best Qualifying Score in Florida

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP)—The team of Laurie Hamner of Sarasota, Fla., and Dave Stockton of San Bernardino, Calif., fired a 10-under-par 62 to lead Monday's qualifiers in the $275,000 PGA National Team Championship, richest tournament in the history of professional golf.

The tournament, boasting $50,000 first money, starts Wednesday at the PGA National Golf Club with 120 two-man teams out to split the record purse.

A score of 70 or better on the west course and 71 or better on the tough, 6,896-yard east course was needed to make one of the 120 teams. Both courses are par 72.

Jim Colbert of Prairie Village, Kan., and Gib Kizer of Wauwau, Wis., combined for a 65, best qualifying round on the 6,418-yard west course.

More than 376 professionals turned out for the 2nd annual best-ball event, including the team of Gay Brewer and Butch Baird, winners of the inaugural last year with a 29-under 259 for the 72 holes.

Forty-nine teams were pre-qualified, leaving the rest in competition for 61 starting spots. Paired again this year are Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus, the big names of the tournament, who had to settle for seventh-place money of $4,200 last year, despite carding four sub-par rounds.

And what about Gillingham, Fuzzy?

Most Area Schools Channeled To Neenah, GBW Sectionals; Neenah, Appleton Will Clash

Fox Cities' area basketball teams who aspire to berths in the 1967 state public school tournament will have to qualify for Madison berths through one of three sectionals.

Most area schools will be channeled to the Neenah or Green Bay West sectionals, while a few others will compete in the Wisconsin Rapids sectional program.

All Fox Cities public high schools have been assigned to either the Appleton or Two Rivers regionals March 3-4, according to the 1967 state tournament plan announced by the Wisconsin Interscholastic Athletic Association.

In the opening Appleton regional pairings, it will be Menasha against Oshkosh and Appleton against Neenah. In the Two Rivers regional openers, it will be Kimberly vs. Two Rivers.

The AHS tourney champion will meet the Winneconne regional finalists in a sub-sectional

AP Names Irish Top Collegiate Team for 1966

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP)—Coach Ara Parseghian and the student body took the fact that Notre Dame was named the nation's national collegiate football champions in stride Monday night.

The student body had little chance to demonstrate. "I guess the students were studying and not listening to their radios," said a campus spokesman. "They'll know all about it Tuesday when the Chicago morning papers hit the campus."

"But, let's face it. They expected to be No. 1." Parseghian, who was informed of the vote before leaving for Chicago and the annual Knute Rockne Memorial Awards Dinner, said he was "absolutely delighted."

Notre Dame had an opportunity to gamble for a last ditch victory against Michigan State but the Irish elected to run out the clock.

The move became a controversy.

St. John Eyes Third Victory; Must Stop Foxes' Jeff Stang

LITTLE CHUTE — With intentions of getting back on the victory trail, the Little Chute St. John basketball team will entertain Omro of the Little Nine Conference at 8 p.m. tonight at the Chuter gym.

The Dutchmen, who opened with impressive wins over Oconto Falls and Kimberly, stumbled against Prentre at Green Bay Saturday night and suffered a 70-48 setback in their first Fox Valley Catholic Conference game.

Omro has a 1-3 record for the season, but has a good offensive point average despite the losses. In the four tilts, the Foxes have scored 258 points for an average of 64.5 per game.

Baltimore Bullets Select Shue for Coaching Job

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP)—The Baltimore Bullets, wallowing in the cellar of the National Basketball Association's Eastern Division, announced Monday that a hometown boy with no coaching experience has been hired to try to better a record of 4-21.

He is Gene Shue, 34, a former University of Maryland All-America with 10 years NBA playing experience and no previous coaching jobs.

Shue's appointment was announced by general manager and interim coach Buddy Jeannotte at a news conference at which the contract was signed.

Shue is the third coach the Bullets have had this season. Mike Farmer, who played at St. Louis, was fired after Baltimore began the season with a 1-9 mark.

Packers Expecting Unitas to be at His Best Saturday

Bart Starr Lauds His QB Rival; Colts in 'Must Win' Situation

By KEN HARTNETT
GREEN BAY (AP)—The Green Bay Packers are braced for the worst — a Johnny Unitas at his best — as they head for Maryland and Saturday's showdown with the back-to-the-wall Baltimore Colts.

The Colts, losers to the Packers in last season's electrifying sudden death playoff, must win or concede the National Football League's Western crown to Green Bay for the fifth time in seven years.

The Packers, who fly to Maryland today after a final Green Bay workout this morning, don't believe that age and injury have made the Colts' Unitas any less a quarterback.

"In a game like this he'll probably be at his best and most dangerous," said quarterback Bart Starr of the Packers. Starr, who had his own heroics on an ice-glazed field against San Francisco Sunday, was more anxious to talk about what Unitas did in Baltimore against the Chicago Bears.

"The real measure of the man showed through when he took his team for that distance with the amount of time he had," said Starr of the Unitas-led drive in the waning minutes that brought the Colts a 21-16 victory.

"Had to Score"
"He had to score and he had a shortage of time and being Unitas, he scored. He's something else. The true man came out," Starr said. "We know we've got our hands full Saturday. They've got to win and so do we."

A victory by the Colts could conceivably lead to another playoff. The Packers must play the red hot Los Angeles Rams after Baltimore while the Colts finish against the 49ers. Should the Colts beat the Packers and San Francisco and the Rams knock off the Packers, the West would end in a tie.

The Colts have the psychological goods going for them. Not only will they be out to avenge last season's playoff defeat, but another loss pinned on them by the Packers in the NFL's 1966 opener. The Colts haven't beaten Green Bay in any of the past four meetings between the teams.

"They've been on the top too," said Starr. "We've always been fighting it out with them. It's a real dedicated ball club and we've got the utmost respect for them — as much or more than we do for anyone we play. It takes a special kind of team to stay up there year after year."

Defensive tackle Ron Kostelnik had praise for Unitas' ability "to pull his team out of a

Packer Defensive Unit Can Learn Important Lessons From Starr

Post-Crescent News Service

GREEN BAY — Just suppose some enemy quarterback pulled a third-and-one Bart Starr trick on the Packers ... for a touchdown.

Starr, to refresh your memory — if it needs a refresher after only 48 hours, faked Elijah Pitts into the line on the third play of the 49er game Sunday and then worked an 83-yard TD aerial with Carroll Dale.

Starr does it several times a season ... and gets away with it.

Well, Bob Jeter, can this sort of thing happen to the Packers? "Anything can happen," Jeter smiled, "But we're not likely to get caught on this same type of play on second or third and short yardage," explaining:

"In that kind of situation, we always let the linebackers do the tackling for the simple reason that none of us little defensive backs is going to throw some of those big offensive backs for a loss anyway. We always play the pass."

Can Fool Defense Jeter said "We're used to seeing those kind of plays. Bart tries it quite often in practice. He certainly can fool a defense, including us."

The Packers' swift defensive back, who guarded the 49ers' Dave Parks Sunday, recalled that Fran Tarkenton "tried the same thing on us in Green Bay this year. He faked Bill Brown into the line on third and less than a yard and then threw to Paul Flatley. All of the defense backs went back together and we had it covered."

This isn't to say the Packers have never been nicked on a third and short yardage situation. Most enemy passers, chiefly John Unitas of the Colts, will throw a quick slat-in toward the right or left.

Starr actually broke even on two third-and-one passers. Holding a 13-0 lead with the ball near midfield, Starr faked Jim Taylor into the line Sunday but the 49ers weren't to be denied. They stormed the linebackers and caught Starr for a nine-yard loss.

Parks, one of the top ends in the league, caught six passes for 138 yards, including a 65-yarder for a touchdown, but Packer defensive coaches felt Jeter did a good job. All of the receptions were shorties except the TD pass, which was slightly tainted.

Parks and Jeter went up for the pass and, en route, Dave shoved Jeter off — an obvious offensive interference. Jeter, of course, wouldn't put the rap on Parks, explaining with a smile:

The Irish eliminated all doubt of their No. 1 status when they clobbered Rose Bowl-bound Southern California 51-0 in the final game of the season.

Notre Dame finished up in the final poll with 41 first place votes and 506 points on a 10-9-8 etc. basis.

Champion Orioles Have Only One in Top 15

Peters, Kaat Pace AL Hurlers

BOSTON (AP) — A pair of left-handers, Gary Peters of the Chicago White Sox and Jim Kaat of the Minnesota Twins, captured top honors today in official 1966 pitching records announced by American League President Joe Cronin.

Peters led the league with a .98 earned run average, one of the lowest since Chicago's Ed Cicotte posted a 1.53 in 1917. He allowed only 45 earned runs in 205 innings while winning 12 games and losing 10.

Kaat, who had a 25-13 record as the Twins were dethroned as champions by Baltimore, was the biggest winner. He also started the most games (41), pitched the most complete games (19) and the most innings (305), faced the most batters (1,154) and gave up the most hits (271).

One Among Top 15 Baltimore, which easily won the pennant and went on to a four-game sweep of the Los Angeles Dodgers in the World Series, had only one pitcher among the top 15 in ERA, based on a minimum of 162 innings.

Orioles southpaw Dave McNally, who had a 13-6 record, was 13th with an earned run average of 3.17. However, the Baltimore staff was fourth in ERA with 3.32, trailing only Chicago (2.68), Minnesota (3.13), and Cleveland (3.23). Joel Horlen, the Chicago right-hander with a 10-13 record, was runnerup to Peters in ERA with a 2.43 mark.

Cleveland southpaw Sam McDowell, who was sidelined several weeks with arm trouble, led the league for the second straight year in strikeouts. He fanned 225, far short of the 325 he struck out in 1965.

Cleveland's Sonny Siebert hurled the only no-hitter, a 2-0 decision over Washington June 10. Rookie right-hander Jim Nash of the Kansas City Athletics posted the highest percentage — .825 — with a 12-1 record.

India Takes Interzone Net Finals, 3 to 2

Defeats Brazil; Earns Right to Face Australians

CALCUTTA, India (AP) — India won the Davis Cup Interzone tennis final from Brazil today, three matches to two, and earned the right to meet Australia in the Challenge Round Dec. 26-28.

Ramanathan Krishnan defeated Thomas Koch in the deciding singles match 3-6, 6-4, 10-12, 7-5, 6-2.

The match had been halted by darkness Monday with Koch leading two sets to one. But Krishnan rallied today and won the last two sets.

In the fourth set, Krishnan fought back after being down 1-5. He won the next six games in a row with magnificent stroke play. Koch tried a net attack but passed repeatedly good back-hand cross court shots and volleys.

Krishnan staged a magnificent comeback after trailing two sets to one Monday and down 1-4 in the fourth set today to win the last two sets in 55 minutes against Koch, Brazil's No. 1 player. The victory enabled India to move into the Challenge Round for the first time.

Spectators surged on the court applauding wildly and surrounded Krishnan for congratulations.

Fireworks also were set off to celebrate India's resurgent victory.

Brazil was playing the Interzone final for the first time ever.

Illini Squeek Past Kentucky, 98-97, in Foul-Plagued Tilt

Four Wildcat Players Foul Out In Overtime Game; Rupp Upset

By HAL BOCK

Associated Press Sports Writer

The shrill tones of high pitched whistles cut through the din at Kentucky's field house and left Coach Adolph Rupp with his fingers in his ears.

"I never saw anything like it in my life," said Rupp, after four Wildcats had fouled out and Illinois had defeated third-ranked Kentucky 98-97 in overtime Monday night.

Rupp, who is 65 and has seen plenty in his 37 years at Kentucky, watched Pat Riley pick up three personal fouls inside of 32 seconds of the first half and finally foul out with almost 12 minutes left to play.

"I was almost getting disgusted with the refereeing," The Baron told newsmen after the game. "In the scrambles, we got all the fouls."

Kentucky never led and Ron Dunlap dropped in the two free throws with 2:15 left in the overtime that put Illinois on top to stay.

Dampier Hits 40

Rich Jones led Illinois with 32 points and Deon Flessner had 23. All America Louie Dampier hit 40 for the Wildcats, Thad Jaracz scored 22 and Riley had 15 before fouling out.

In another major upset, Michigan topped seventh-ranked Houston 86-75 at Ann Arbor.

A year ago it would have been an upset if the Wolverines hadn't taken Houston but that was when Cazzie Russell was still around. Russell has graduated and it looked like a long season when Michigan dropped its first two games. But against a much taller Houston club, Michigan got 23 points from Dennis Stewart, a sophomore, and won going away.

"It's fun to win one," said Coach Dave Strack, who had plenty of practice in the Russell years. "This has got to make Lafayette and Matthew Aitch had 15 apiece.

Butch Joyner scored 22 points and Vernon Payne added 21 as Indiana whipped Missouri. Ron Coleman led the losers with 16.

Vanderbilt hit 82 per cent from the floor in the first seven minutes and romped past Southwestern Louisiana. Bo Wyenandt sank seven straight field goals during the streak and wound up with 21 points, leading five men in double figures.

Steve Jansa's three-point play opened a five-point lead for Creighton in the final 1½ minutes against Iowa. Sam Williams of the losers led all scorers with 29 points.

Ara Parseghian Denies Being Offered Lions' Coaching Job

DETROIT (AP) — Former network sportscaster Harry Wismer said in a radio interview Monday night that Notre Dame coach Ara Parseghian has been offered a 10-year contract at $50,000 a year to coach the Detroit Lions of the National Football League.

Wismer, one of the founders of the American Football League, made the statement in a long-distance telephone interview with sportscaster Al Ackerman of Station WWJ, Detroit. Wismer was in New York.

Wismer said: "Knowing Billy Ford... owner of the Lions... it is my opinion that Ara Parseghian, the head coach at Notre Dame, who makes $20,000 a year, has been offered $50,000 a year for 10 years to coach the Lions."

The Lions flatly denied the statement.

"We have had no contact of any kind with Parseghian," said Lyall Smith, publicity director. "The way Ara is going it would probably cost $100,000 a year to get him away from Notre

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

by John Behnke

Here's the story about how the famous Notre Dame "Victory March" was written...

This is the song that starts out "Cheer, Cheer For Old Notre Dame"... It has become the best known football tune of all-time...

Actually, it was written by a priest, in 1909... One day at a game that season, Father Michael Shea decided Notre Dame should have an appropriate song...

At the time, they didn't have one... After the game, Father Shea went to a piano in a nearby building, but someone was using the piano...

So, Father Shea then went to the Sacred Heart Church on campus and composed the song on the organ at the church...

His brother, John Shea, then wrote the words... And thus, football's most famous fight song was written on a church organ.

Has Alabama's football coach Bear Bryant ever had a losing season? ... He's been a head coach now every year since 1945 and in all these years, he's had just one losing season...

That was at Texas A & M in 1954 when his team won only one game and lost nine...

SPORT FANS! I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW
by John Behnke
Here's the story about how the famous Notre Dame "Victory March" was written... This is the song that starts out "Cheer, Cheer For Old Notre Dame"... It has become the best known football tune of all-time... Actually, it was written by a priest, in 1909... One day at a game that season, Father Michael Shea decided Notre Dame should have an appropriate song... At the time, they didn't have one... After the game, Father Shea went to a piano in a nearby building, but someone was using the piano... So, Father Shea then went to the Sacred Heart Church on campus and composed the song on the organ at the church... His brother, John Shea, then wrote the words... And thus, football's most famous fight song was written on a church organ.
Has Alabama's football coach Bear Bryant ever had a losing season? ... He's been a head coach now every year since 1945 and in all these years, he's had just one losing season... That was at Texas A & M in 1954 when his team won only one game and lost nine... I bet you didn't know... The new 1967 calendars are here. Come in soon.

Father Rickert Among Priests Transferred

Darboy Pastor Going To Oshkosh; Name Kaukauna Assistant

Six priests, in the Green Bay Diocese, including three pastors, have received new appointments by the Most Rev. Stanislaus Bona, bishop, which will become effective next Tuesday.

The Rev. Francis Rose, pastor, St. Mary, Oshkosh, has been named pastor of St. Isidore, Osman. Succeeding him at Oshkosh will be the Rev. William Rickert, pastor, Holy Angels, Darboy. The Rev. Donald Schneider, pastor at Osman, is transferred to Darboy.

The changes in assistant pastors are: the Rev. James C. Van De Loo, from St. Mary, Oshkosh, to St. Mary, Kaukauna; the Rev. Gerald Alfieri, from Kaukauna to St. Joseph, Sturgeon Bay; and the Rev. David Barrett, from Sturgeon Bay to St. Mary, Oshkosh.

Father Rose, a native of Forestville, studied at John University, Collegeville Minn., and was ordained in 1939.

Superintendent
He was appointed assistant pastor of Sacred Heart, Shawano in 1939 and became superintendent of St. Joseph Orphanage, Green Bay, in 1942. His first assignment as pastor came in 1947, when he was named first resident pastor of St. Denis, Shiocton, with the mission of St. Lawrence, Navarino.

He became pastor of St. Michael, Whitelaw, in 1957 and St. Mary, Oshkosh, in 1965. He is a member of the Priests' Choir since 1939 and the Diocesan Commission for Sacred Music, Sacred Art and Sacred Liturgy since 1960.

Father Rickert, a native of Freedom, took his theology studies at St. John Seminary and was ordained in 1945. His first assignment was that of assistant pastor and school administrator at St. Mary, Menasha, where he remained until 1958.

Mission Pastor
He was then named pastor of Sacred Heart, Spruce, with its mission at St. Wenceslaus' in Klondike. In 1963 he became pastor of Holy Angels, Darboy.

He has been the diocesan director of the Rural Life Conference since 1959 and secretary of the National Catholic Rural Life Conference board.

Father Schneider, ordained in 1950, is a native of Andigo. He has been assistant pastor of St. Joseph, Oconto, and in 1954 was named temporary assistant of St. Ambrose, Wabeno. That same year he was named assistant at St. Francis Xavier, DePere.

P-C Editor Heads Press Committee

Torinus Group Will Draft Crime News Coverage Guidelines

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Wisconsin Daily Newspaper League authorized a special committee Monday to draft a set of guidelines for press coverage of crime news.

John B. Torinus, editor of the Post-Crescent, Appleton, heads the committee which will submit the guidelines to member newspapers.

The Torinus committee has been watching developments in press-law relationships since the issue was stirred up by a Supreme Court decision upholding the murder conviction of Dr. Samuel Shepard on the grounds that the atmosphere created by press coverage prevented him from receiving a fair trial.

Bill Stalled
Torinus reported to the league at its annual meeting Monday that the Wisconsin Assembly had adopted a bill that would have made it unlawful for certain public officials to give out information on criminal cases to the press. The measure was stalled in the Senate.

Atty. W. Wade Boardman, Madison, counsel for the league, said the state press "could have lived with the bill." But he said it would have discouraged public officials from giving information to the public through the press.

In other action, the League supported legislation to insert an enforcement provision into the Wisconsin anti-secrecy law. Another resolution endorsed the principle that newsmen could not be forced to disclose the source of their information.

of Kaukauna, returns to his home parish. He received his bachelor's and master's degrees in theology from Catholic University and was ordained in 1961. He then served as weekend assistant to St. Joseph Parish, Marinette, with residence at Catholic Central High School. He has been an assistant at St. Mary, Oshkosh, since September of 1961.

Father Alfieri, a native of Appleton, was ordained in 1963. He served as temporary assistant from June to September, 1963, in St. Paul, Combined Locks, prior to being named assistant at St. Mary, Kaukauna.

An additional assignment, effective immediately, was received by the Rev. Benedict Kleiber, Newman Club chaplain, Oshkosh, who was named diocesan director of Newman Clubs.

The Manitowoc native was ordained in 1960 and will remain full time chaplain at WSU-O Newman Club.

Snowmobile Breakthrough

3 Marion Fishermen Rescued From Icy Lake

MARION — If three Marion ice fishermen feel an icy shiver when they look out over a frozen lake, it's not entirely from the weather.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Goodstorf and a would-be rescuer, William Bertram, spent several terror-filled moments Saturday night before being plucked from the bone chilling water of Lac Vieux Desert, near Land O Lakes, after their snowmobiles broke through the ice.

There were seven in the group that spent a successful day of ice fishing on the Michigan-Wisconsin border lake. Aside from the forementioned were James Rogers, Lloyd Nell and Reuben and Jerry Braun.

They used three snowmobiles to travel to their favorite fishing spots. It was near dark when the Goodstorfs decided to head back to their cottage, taking a different route than they had followed in the morning.

The others continued to fish. Minutes later there was silence — the Goodstorf's snowmobile engine stopped suddenly — then screams for help. Bertram and Jerry Braun jumped on one machine, and Rogers on another as they sped to the rescue.

About a mile away they found the couple in the water. Then Bertram's machine broke through the ice, plunging him into the water while Braun leaped to safety.

Braun pulled Bertram from the water, and Rogers, meanwhile, tossed a rope to Goodstorf and pulled him from the ice chunk to which he had been clinging, to solid ice. Braun hurled a rope to Mrs. Goodstorf, who clutched a box that had been attached to their snowmobile and was now floating. Mrs. Goodstorf, who could not swim, was quickly pulled to safety.

Clothing Frozen
The Goodstorf's were piled on a sled behind Rogers snowmobile while Rogers and Braun scouted for safe ice. They found the morning's trail and followed it to shore.

Bertram started walking. When the rescuers returned to pick him up his clothing was frozen solid.

The two machines were retrieved from about 12 feet of water Sunday.

The deer reportedly were killed on a field off County Trunk D and were found later by wardens.

Blame Driver, Railroad

Jury Finds Both Caused Hortonville Fatal Accident

The driver who was killed and the Chicago and North Western Railway Co. were found negligent in causing a fatal accident April 28, 1965 at a railroad crossing on U.S. 45 near Hortonville.

The suit, filed in Circuit Court and heard last week by a 12-member jury, was started by Harold Jenkin, Wisconsin Rapids, who sought a total of $28,000 from the railroad in connection with the death of his son, Joseph Jenkin.

The jury found the crew of the Fond du Lac-bound freight train 55 per cent negligent and Joseph Jenkin, who was 31 and lived at Wausau, 45 per cent negligent in causing the mid-night accident. There was one dissenting juror.

The jury ruled that Harold Jenkin was entitled to nothing for pecuniary loss and $2,500 for loss of companionship of his son. The court awarded the man $1,059 for funeral and ambulance expenses.

Jenkin Alone
Jenkin was alone in his car when it was struck by the freight train. He was killed instantly.

His father, in the damage suit, maintained that the train crew: Operated at an unreasonable speed; failed to keep proper lookout; failed to keep the train under proper management and control; failed to give timely warning by signal of the intentions to operate the train over the crossing; failed to have the train lights on, warning of its approach; and failed to sound a whistle before the crossing.

Attorneys for the railroad contended that Jenkin operated his car at excessive speed, failed to maintain proper lookout, and operated his car on a public highway while under the influence of intoxicants.

Circuit Judge Andrew W. Parnell presided over the case which ended Friday.

UW Group To Support Protesters

MADISON (AP) — A University of Wisconsin group calling itself the United Campus Action Committee drew a crowd of 400 Monday night and discussed plans for supporting student protest movements in other schools.

Talks centered on the war in Viet Nam, the withdrawal of U.S. troops and military conscription. These subjects and proposals suggesting demands on the university administration were laid over until a later date.

Another campus group, the Committee for Direct Action, reported it was preparing plans for confronting Marine recruiters in Memorial Union. A similar incident last week at the University of California in Berkeley when students picketed a Navy recruiting table touched off a protest and student strike. Members of the action unit include students and nonstudents who figured in earlier picketing incidents at Truax Air Force Base in Madison and a pooling place Nov. 8.

Knowles Lauds Alert Press

Government Kept Honest, Effective, Newspapermen Told

MILWAUKEE (AP) — An alert press can claim credit for Wisconsin's enviable reputation for clean, open government, Gov. Warren P. Knowles said today.

In a prepared talk to the Wisconsin Daily Newspaper League, the governor said the most obvious reason for the record is the group of talented and dedicated public servants in government, and added:

"Less obvious, but equally true, we have honest and effective government because an alert press serves as a constant reminder that any questionable or dishonorable activities will be exposed to public view."

Knowles said the only direct line of communications that exists between government and the people is the news media and noted that public officials have to depend on the media to accurately and thoroughly inform the citizens.

At the same time, he noted, newsmen must depend on public officials for accurate and complete information. "Reporters and editors don't like to have to depend on 'handouts' from public officials as the basis for their news stories, yet, they can't possibly gather all of the facts on their own," he stated.

He said he wants to make the job of reporting the news as easy as he can and said he welcomes suggestions and asked league members to inform him if they believe it would be helpful to set up a conference on communications to discuss ways to improve the flow of information from state government to the public.

Aw, Kids Can't Own Stock

Yes they can... through a custodianship under Wisconsin law, grown-ups like parents, grandparents, or others can set up investment programs for youngsters.

Think what a small, but steady program could mean to a child today... a program aimed at protecting certain funds from inflation by investment in common stocks.

It could mean money for a college education or post-graduate work. It could be the means of starting out in business or in marriage with a financial back-log he wouldn't otherwise have. It could be the means of starting a life-long program of sharing in the good things offered by sharing in American business.

Want to give a kid a present for today... and many tomorrows? Why not a gift of common stock?

We can show you how to make such a gift under Wisconsin Law, and we'd be pleased and proud if you'd let us help you get that special youngster you know started.

Chiefs Eye Super Bowl Berth

Much-Maligned Stram Now Receives Plaudits

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG KANSAS CITY (AP) — Hank Stram, coach of Kansas City's western AFL champs, was in Gary, Ind., speaking at his old high school's 1959 football banquet when Lamar Hunt, a young Texas oilman, phoned requesting an interview for a head coaching job in the new league. This was the beginning of Stram's association with the fledgling club in the league Hunt and his friends organized. It led to an AFL crown at Dallas in 1962, a nosedive when the club moved here in 1963 and now the first major professional sports crown in the city's history. It could lead to a date in the first Super Bowl with the National Football League champ, the result of the AFL-NFL merger Hunt instigated. College Offers Stram had two head college coaching offers pending when Hunt called. He had 12 years experience as an offensive coach at Purdue, SMU, Notre Dame and Miami. Stram jumped at the chance for a pro job. He had been using pro-style attacks as an assistant.

"It never even occurred to me that the AFL might fold," he said.

After the club's collapse in 1963, Hunt made public a five-year contract Stram had signed after the 1962 title year, then commented:

"Hank is the best coach in football, a great leader and a wonderful person. He can be our coach as long as he wants to."

Stram often was maligned as the Chiefs were hit by key injuries during 7-7 and 7-5-2 finishes the past two seasons.

Best Personnel

Kansas City was frequently decried and written about as a club with the best talent and personnel in the game.

It wasn't true, although the Chiefs did have gifted individuals. In fact, the club had serious flaws in the absence of a deep-pass threat at flanker and the lack of outside running speed.

Olympic sprinter Stone Johnson might have been the answer but he died before the 1963 season. This year, with flanker Otis Taylor and running backs Bert Coan and Mike Garrett, the club has the speed it needed.

Now the 42-year-old Stram is gaining recognition as one of football's most astute coaches, the inventor of the triple stack defense the play-action pass and the moving pocket. Players the little guy was rapped for sticking with are having a big year.

Monroe Rink Wins State Lions Bonspiel

The Monroe rink, skipped by Bob Goetz, won the state Lions Club bonspiel over the weekend at the Appleton Curling Club.

Monroe went an extra end to defeat Medford's Bill Persich in the finals.

Wauwatosa's Carl Gray edged the Cal Falk rink, of Appleton, 12-11, to capture the second-event title.

Twelve rinks competed in the bonspiel. Next year, the state meet will be held at Galesville.

McLaughry Quits Football Post at Brown University

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Brown University, the doormat of the Ivy League, was in the market for a football coach today to succeed John McLaughry, long a target of disgruntled alumni and fans.

McLaughry, whose Bruins defeated Rhode Island in the opener and then lost eight straight this fall, resigned Saturday after what he called "eight difficult years which have been unsatisfactory both to the university and myself."

McLaughry, son of former Tuss McLaughry, said his future plans "are undetermined."

In his eight years as coach, Omro's Jeff Stang fired in 15 Brown teams under McLaughry points to run his 4-year total to won 17 games, lost 51 and tied 1,014 for the Foxes.

More Air Assaults Staged on North; Little Letup Foreseen

U. S. Jets Again Tangle With Communist MIGs; Plane Lost

SAIGON, South Viet Nam — Another U.S. plane was shot down over North Viet Nam today, bringing the toll in the last 24 hours of the quickening air war to three American aircraft.

The U.S. Command announced that American jets tangled with Communist MIG interceptors Monday for the fourth straight day, but there was no word that any American or North Vietnamese planes were downed in the dogfights.

In South Viet Nam, Vietnamese military headquarters announced the mass surrender of 62 Viet Cong guerrillas in the enemy-infested Hon Chong — Twin Sisters — mountain area on the Gulf of Siam near the Cambodian border.

A spokesman said that 2,250

Bombing May Be Sought of Red Airfields

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U. S. Air Force leaders in Viet Nam probably will press anew for bombing of North Viet Nam's jet airfields because of the greatly increased activity by MIG jet fighters, sources indicated today.

American F105 Thunderchiefs knocked down one MIG17 for certain Sunday and probably downed another. This boosted the U. S. score to 26 definite kills and two probabilities. North Vietnamese pilots have shot down only five American planes.

Decision-making U. S. officials in Washington have ruled out any strikes against North Viet Nam's jet airfields, at least until now. They said there is no need to hit them until the North Vietnamese air force becomes a serious threat.

Action Urged

U. S. Air Force leaders believe it would be prudent to take out the jet fields. One source said the Air Force has repeatedly urged such action. The much increased activity of the North Vietnamese MIGs gives the air force a new lever.

Despite persistent reports that the North Vietnamese air force has been beefed up substantially, American air officers say the Red force still numbers about 75 planes.

Air Force generals said the North Vietnamese pilots are not very aggressive. They do not come out looking for a fight.

"The North Vietnamese pilots wait for a cripple — a sure kill," said one general.

Hitchhiker Pulls Knife in Woman's Car

Forces Appleton Resident to Drive Him to Oshkosh

Wisconsin police agencies were alerted this morning to be on the lookout for a young well-dressed hitchhiker who got into an Appleton woman's car, pulled a knife and forced her to drive to Oshkosh about 7 a.m.

Mrs. Lloyd Learman, 20, 1201 W. Packard Ave., Appleton, told Outagamie County police the man got into her car when she stopped for a red light at Blue Mound Road and State 125 near Elm Tree Bakery in the Town of Grand Chute.

Mrs. Learman said he had appeared to be hitchhiking. He got into her car on the passenger's side, closed the door and said he wanted to go to Oshkosh, she told police.

Pulled Knife

Mrs. Learman, who was alone in her car, told the man she was going to Neenah. He then reached into his overcoat pocket and pulled out a knife which she said resembled a kitchen knife with a four to five-inch blade.

Britain Vows War on Rhodesian Economy

LONDON (AP) — The British government made plans today to wage economic war against defiant Rhodesia despite the grim knowledge that the cost could be crippling.

The nation braces for rising turmoil in Africa, more bitterness in the Commonwealth, parliamentary strife at home and a harmful effect on its already shaky finances.

These were some of the accepted implications of Prime Minister Harold Wilson's vow to crush Ian Smith's rebel white settler regime in Rhodesia no matter how long it takes.

One immediate concern was that a run on the pound sterling might develop in stock exchanges reacting nervously to the Rhodesian cabinet's rejection of the peace formula Wilson and Smith drew up last weekend.

The Bank of England was reported to have made 10 million pounds ($28 million) available in New York and to be ready to spend millions more in the foreign exchange market to fend off any sudden onslaught by speculators.

Ban On Trade

Warning the Rhodesians that "certain inevitable consequences" must flow from their continued defiance of Britain, Wilson ordered full speed ahead on moves to impose a worldwide ban on trade with the breakaway colony.

Foreign Secretary George Brown was leaving for New York tonight to steer Britain's application for compulsory sanctions through the U.N. Security Council.

A council meeting was scheduled Thursday morning, and quick action was expected. Officials in Washington pledged continued U.S. support for British actions against Rhodesia. But aroused Africans at the United Nations renewed demands that Britain use force.

'Long Ago'

"Britain should have used force long ago," Ambassador Mousa Leo Keita of Mali, a member of the council, told a reporter. Keita said he was aware that Britain had an economic stake in Rhodesia. Ambassador Mohamed Fahreddine of Sudan said Smith's

Fog, Drizzle Dampen Day

Short Respite From Cold Weather Not Expected to Last

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ordinarily, a December day with temperatures in the 40s would be something to be happy about. But not in Wisconsin today.

Fog, drizzle, rain and heavily overcast skies added up to a dismal weather picture, and more cold weather is due back in the state tonight and Wednesday.

One bright note was the fact that high temperatures and rain cleared the southern part of the state of the ice cover left by Sunday's freezing rain.

Snow, Sleet

Snow and sleet swept through northern Wisconsin Monday night as rain fell in the south. The greatest precipitation was 3.4 of an inch in the Wausau area. Park Falls had 2.7, La Crosse .15 and Madison and Beloit .13.

Milwaukee and the Beloit region topped the temperature climb in Wisconsin Monday with 36 degrees. Others ranged down to Park Falls' 23.

Lowest reading early today was 23 at Park Falls. Superior and Wausau had 25. Beloit was the warmest place with a low of 33.

First Reports Indicate Student Injuries Slight

TOMAH (AP) — A school bus taking 39 rural children to school in Tomah skidded off Monroe County Trunk P this morning, clipped off a utility pole, slid down an embankment and crashed to rest on its top.

All of the children were rushed to Tomah Memorial Hospital, with private autos pressed into service to assist available ambulances.

Bill Graham, curriculum coordinator for Tomah schools, said a boy who suffered a fractured leg and a girl a fractured arm were the most seriously injured.

Hospital attendants refused to identify the two.

Most of the other youngsters were treated for glass cuts and bruises.

Driver of the bus was Edward Luddane.

The Tomah school district bus was en route to the city in freezing rain when it skidded off the road and plunged down the embankment. It knocked over an electric utility pole and power was cut off in the area to eliminate any danger from that source.

Damp Weather Will Continue

Fox Cities — Partly cloudy and cold tonight and Wednesday. Low tonight, 20; high Wednesday, 30. Fresh westerly winds diminishing to light late tonight. Light drizzle tonight and Wednesday.

Appleton — Observations for the past 24 hours show high, 41; low, 30. Barometer 29.58, and falling. Winds south at 20 miles per hour. Relative humidity, 96. Dew point, 36. Skies cloudy. Trace of precipitation.

4 Deaths Boost State Fatality Toll to 1,025

2 Kenosha Men Die in Crash Late Monday

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The deaths of four persons boosted Wisconsin's 1966 highway fatality toll to 1,025, compared to 954 on this date last year and 998 at this time in 1964 when a record 1,059 persons lost their lives on Wisconsin roads.

Leonard Jerrdeau, 56, of Muscoda, was killed Monday in a crash on U. S. 61 five and a half miles south of Boscobel. Grant County Sheriff's deputies said Jerrdeau's car sideswiped a cattle truck in an attempt to pass the vehicle, left the road, struck an embankment and rolled over.

Daniel J. Mares, 20, and Raymond Roseth Jr., 22, both of Kenosha, were killed late Monday when their convertible collided with a station wagon at the junction of States 50 and 192 west of Kenosha.

The station wagon driver, Robert L. Brown, 24, of Kenosha, a Marine private home on leave, was hospitalized.

Victor F. Novak, 53, of rural Kewaunee was injured fatally Monday when his car collided with a semi-trailer truck at a State 163 intersection in Kewaunee County. His wife was hospitalized.

Howard W. Foster, 56, of New Richmond, was killed Monday night when his car slammed into the rear of a truck parked on U. S. 65, six miles south of New Richmond. The truck driver, Curtis E. Knutson, 31, of Sand Creek, Wis., told authorities he had left his truck to ask directions.

Lodge Sees Viet Nam War 'Fading Out'

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — The war in Viet Nam "just might fade out" with no formal end, U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge said today.

The American envoy, serving his second tour of duty as ambassador to South Viet Nam, said the over-all situation in the country is better than it was a year ago although "progress is uneven."

In an interview with the Mutual Broadcasting System, Lodge recalled that the situation was "extremely bad" in May 1965 but took a turn for the better in July.

"Not Going to Work" "I think you could say that they cannot win," said Lodge. "I think you could say that we cannot lose, we cannot be pushed out. I think you could say that we haven't won yet."

Concerning the possibility the war might just fade away, the ambassador explained that people in the Orient are "extremely realistic."

"The (Oriental) man," he said, "makes up his mind one day that this thing that looked pretty good really isn't so very good. It's not going to work out, so he just decides to fade out. And nobody admits anything."

NASA Director Defends Cost

BY WILLIAM C. CAREY
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — Clutching a critical newspaper headline in one hand and using the other for emphasis, director James E. Webb defended the U. S. space program here Monday and suggested mayors find out more about it.

Webb, who heads the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, was one of the keynote speakers at the 43rd annual Congress of Cities sponsored by the National League of Cities.

Webb, speaking without a text, quickly responded to a few mayors of larger cities who have charged too much money is being poured into the space program when more should be diverted into programs to help cities with their problems.

"The cities are apparently challenging space priorities," Webb declared, "but I didn't come here to challenge the cities."

Irked by Attacks

Webb made his mission clear but obviously was irked by those who would advocate winding the space research program dollar-wise.

Webb said he wasn't here to argue with anyone — he was promoting the space program and made disclosures on how cities and mankind in general will benefit from it in the years to come.

to the moon would be made during the last quarter of 1969.

Webb also said it is hoped to land on Mars by 1973 or 1975, explaining by then technology will have been developed to see if life exists there.

Half the Cost

He said spokesmen for the League of Cities were inaccurate when they said the 10-year space program was costing $70 billion to put one man on the moon. The correct figure, Webb said, was $35 billion.

Webb cited that 95 per cent of

Japanese Sink the Battleship Arizona

WASHINGTON (AP) —

Twenty-five years ago Wednesday was a gray day, cold, even in Louisiana. I was fishing in Salt Bayou, 30 miles from New Orleans, with a man who had taught English in some of the best schools in the East. He had an elegant touch, even toward fish. But we didn't catch any.

And when the sun began to dissolve behind the trees we went across the bayou, into the channel with the tall grass, keeping the outboard motor low. We pulled up at the wharf near Big Sam's boathouse. The little man who worked for him came skipping and hopping down to see us.

"This place is loaded with crappies," he said. "You ought to try them." We did. He kept telling us where they were: here, there, there. But we didn't get any. We were shaking in the cold. The sun was gone. We packed up and went up to the boathouse.

Looking, Listening

Big Sam was there, behind the counter where he sold soft drinks and sandwiches. But he hardly said hello to us. He was looking up at a radio on a shelf on the wall, and listening. There were two strangers there, too, looking up and listening.

And the voice on the radio was saying the Japanese had sunk the battleship Arizona. We thought we had come in late on a program. I asked Sam what the program was. He said there was no program. He said the Japanese had attacked Pearl Harbor. I asked him if he was kidding. He said: "No, just listen."

The voice was saying more. I looked at the little man who had been jumping up and down about the crappies. I asked him: "Did you know about the Japanese when you came down to the dock?" He said: "Yes." I said: "Why didn't you tell us?" He said: "I never thought about it."

The English teacher and I listened a few minutes more.

And one of us said: "This is where our lives change." And they did. And, while the little man who liked crappies forgot about Pearl Harbor, practically nobody else has, ever since, or could.

There were a lot of changes. For, while trying to blow up Pearl Harbor was just a part of World War II, what really blew up was the roof of a world which then became a mixed bag of blessings and dismay for the next quarter of a century.

Until the big war, for most people the world had been a lifelong journey through a dismal swamp where, except for Japan, almost every country in Asia and Africa was centuries behind the times, held in outright thrall by the big powers of the West, or under the Western thumb.

The war brought changes as fantastic as the age of exploration. Everywhere new nations were born with a chance for the first time to achieve their own ecstasy or agony.

Has man learned much from World War II? Not much, basically. In many ways he has only rearranged the furniture.

Turn Cannibal Japan was denuded of its acquisitions, forced back into its home islands. The vast Germany of Hitler was split in half. But the allies split in half, too. The Soviet Union is now the antagonist of the West. And Japan and West Germany, more prosperous now than in all their history, are the friends and proteges of the United States.

Through the bankruptcy of power that the war brought, many people and nations acknowledged grudgingly the rights of others to freedom, justice and dignity only in turn to see the newly freed turn cannibals on themselves and the rights of neighbors.

Millions of men, illiterate and hungry, still trudge the dismal swamp of existence. Nations get tangled, as before, in stupidity and cupidity. The biggest powers live behind a burglar alarm system of radar screens and missiles.

And there is no one alive able to predict whether man suffered enough or learned enough from World War II to avoid World War III.

WSU-O Best Fitted For New Programs, State Regents Feel

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — Wisconsin State University-Oshkosh is best fitted to serve the "dynamic future" of the populous Fox River Valley by expanding its research, public service and graduate work beyond the traditional undergraduate services, according to a report filed today with the Board of Regents of State Colleges.

In guarded language, the regents were told by staff officers that the Oshkosh campus, rather than the new branch of the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay, is the logical higher education center for the Fox River Valley.

The comments came in a long-range academic enlargement plan for the state university system which was filed today with the regents' education committee, and will be reviewed at a meeting of the full board Wednesday.

Hint of Conflict

It was the first hint of potential conflict between the state university and the University of Wisconsin systems in the development of broadened higher education programs in the future.

A year ago the two systems collided in the legislature in a dispute about the proper jurisdiction for the new University of Wisconsin regional branches proposed for the Valley and Racine-Kenosha areas, and the University of Wisconsin won the political engagement.

The new state university report outlined in general the natural expansion course of the system, including a widening of graduate school programs.

It noted that "as yet, the full scope of the new institutions scheduled for Green Bay and Racine-Kenosha areas has not yet been determined."

Then it "respectfully submitted" that "in the dynamic future confronting Wisconsin the need for additional comprehensive

Autopsy Fails To Solve Death Of Marion Boy

No Evidence of Foul Play; Laboratory Test Will Be Made

MARION — An autopsy performed Monday morning failed to reveal the cause of death of Colin Lee Salzman, 14, who was found dead in the front seat of the family car Sunday night.

A Wausau pathologist told, sheriff's department authorities laboratory tests now will be made in an effort to learn the cause of death. The tests will take approximately a week to complete, he said. There was no evidence of foul play, and the car had not been running, police said.

The son of Mrs. Lucille Suehring, Colin was found dead in the family auto which was parked in the garage. Mrs. Suehring told police her son left home about 2 p.m. and said he was going to look for a job shoveling snow.

When he failed to return by 9 p.m., Mrs. Suehring notified Marion Police Chief Jack Beto. She found the body of her son in the car at approximately 10 p.m.

An autopsy was ordered by Dr. William McGinnis, Waupaca County deputy coroner.

Set Funeral
Friends may call anytime today until noon Wednesday at the Uttomark Funeral Home and from 1 p.m. until the time of service at the church.

Burial will be at Graceland Cemetery, Clintonville. The Rev. Clarence Biglar, pastor of First United Methodist, will officiate at the church and burial.

Dirt Cheap Dirt Still Issue at New London

NEW LONDON — More than 2,000 loads of fill sold at 50 cents a load earlier this year remains a heated issue on the common council floor.

Reference was made to the fill sale Monday by two aldermen after receiving bills for fill or work done by the city street department.

Difference in Grade
Ald. Mrs. Elroy Stern (3rd), chairman of the health committee, objected to her department being assessed $1.50 per load for fill (about 235 loads) by the public works department when the city could sell fill to a city resident for 50 cents a load.

She questioned where the city got the fill and what difference there was in the quality. She said the fill sold to C. O. Dorsey last year wasn't all clay and could be used for city purposes at the price it was sold.

Mrs. Stern has contended for some time that it is poor economics to sell fill at 50 cents a load and then buy other fill for $1.50.

Ray Pelishek, public works director, said the $1.50 fill was furnished by the street department from work it was doing.

Ald. Mrs. Walter Schoenrock (2nd) objected to charges against the cemetery budget for work done by the city street department.

Excessive Charges
Mrs. Schoenrock termed the charges as being excessive and unfair to the taxpayer. Inner-city work costs more than private work she said, referring to the fill sale controversy.

She said the cemetery committee was being charged $6.63 per hour for a grader and $4.05 per hour for a loader at the cemetery in addition to trucks for work supposedly done this summer in preparation to paving cemetery driveways.

Mrs. Schoenrock said she did not see any city equipment at the site this year when the Waupaca County Highway Department was doing the preparatory work.

Members of the Waupaca Kiwanis Club and Jaycees will conduct a Waupaca Community Chest follow-up drive, Dec. 1 to 11. The two organizations will contact all Waupaca residents who were not contacted for donations during the regular drive. Community Chest drive chairman, Harvey (Bud) Nelson, left, discusses plans with, from left, Kiwanis Club officers Irving Peterson and Don Fredrickson and Jaycee president Edward Kramer. The Community Chest goal this year has been set at $10,360 and 91 per cent of this has already been raised, Nelson said. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Task Force on Recreation Eyes More Funds, Revamping

Unit to Consult With Sen. Nelson; Seeks to Double Program Size

FOX CITIES

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The task force appointed by Gov. Warren Knowles to review the Outdoor Recreation Act Program (ORAP) decided Monday morning to confer with the original architect of the program, Sen. Gaylord Nelson, on ways to double the present budget of the program and restructure its organization.

The financial resources committee of ORAP is considering the budget for acquisition and development of recreational resources in the state to some $9.9 million by 1971, double the size of the present program.

Chairman Leo W. Roethel said members would be conferring with Sen. Nelson, who instigated the effort to establish ORAP during his gubernatorial career, shortly to consider new sources of revenue for the expanded program. Among the alternatives are:

—An increase of the present special one cent tax on cigarettes to two cents.

—Possible additional taxes on beer or soft drinks.

—Possible financing of the program from general tax revenues.

—Additional fees for use of the state's park facilities.

—Bonding for acquisition and development purposes.

Simultaneously with considering a beefed up ORAP program, the task force also is drafting a bill to restructure the organization.

Left Guard Agent Denies State Charge

William S. Martine, 34, 308 Edgewood Drive, Neenah, agent for Old Pro, Inc., which operates the Left Guard Charcoal House on W. College Avenue, Monday afternoon pleaded innocent of a charge brought following investigation by state agents.

Outagamie County Judge Gustave J. Keller ordered bond of $250 and set May 24 for trial. Martine posted bond shortly after his arraignment. He appeared with a Madison attorney, Donald Eiesenberg.

Martine is charged, in a complaint signed by Dist. Atty. Nick F. Schaefer, with "permitting the obstruction of a full and complete view of the interior of the premises (The Left Guard) from the outside during hours in which the sale of liquor is prohibited."

Two agents of the Wisconsin Department of Taxation, Division of Beverage and Cigarette Taxes, reportedly made their investigation early the morning of Nov. 29. The Left Guard, which opened a few months ago, is at 3025 W. College Ave., in the Town of Grand Chute.

The agents reportedly found about a dozen persons, several of them Green Bay Packers football players, in a room other than the main barroom about 1:45 a.m. Nov. 29.

500 Highway Officials Expected at Conference

MADISON (AP) — The State Highway Commission reported today it expects 500 county and state highway officials to attend the 54th annual winter highway conference in Madison Jan. 24-26. Gov. Warren P. Knowles will address the opening session.

Credit Cuts Chilton Taxes

State Refund Brings Rate Down to $22.93 Per $1,000 of Value

CHILTON — A state credit will reduce the real estate tax rate by $1.82 per $1,000 assessed valuation for city property owners.

The rate of $24.75 for $1,000 of assessed valuation for city school, state and county needs is "brought down to $22.93 as a result of the sales tax credit."

Last year's state tax credit rate was $1.86.

The new personal property tax credit on merchants' and manufacturers' stock will be 60 per cent, according to figures from the State Department of Taxation.

UCS Drive $25,000 Short of Goal

Volunteers in the 1966 United Red Feather Campaign have raised $232,879 for 88 per cent of the $264,835 goal.

"We see some money that will come in late, but unless these firms have fantastic increases, we will be about $25,000 short of the minimum needs for our 14 agencies," Richard Van Sistine, general chairman, reported today.

Amount to date is $20,463 more than was raised in the 1965 campaign. However, there are two more agencies in the drive this year — Red Cross and the Mental Health Association.

"I am concerned that many of our givers somehow missed the fact that these agencies are a part of this year's campaign, and are unaware that there will be no Red Cross campaign this spring, and no Mental Health drive next year," Van Sistine said.

"An analysis of campaign gifts indicate that firms and individuals that are aware, have increased their giving proportionately," he said.

Miss Givers
"Because of the multiplicity of house-to-house campaigns in Appleton, we did not have that kind of campaign this year. Our volunteers contacted givers who had contributed $3 or more last year, and we have asked that other givers send their contributions direct to the Red Feather office. We are also aware that some larger givers have not been contacted because they were not home, were out of town or because they work outside of the city," Van Sistine said.

"We appreciate the newspaper's cooperation in running the 'Did We Miss You?' insert in today's paper, and we ask that any potential giver, please send the coupon in before Dec. 15. Since agency budgets must be set before the first of the year, it is imperative we know what allocations we are going to be able to make," he added.

"Local radio stations, and their advertisers are also cooperating in this cleanup," the campaign chairman said.

Van Sistine gave special praise to firms and their employees that have done an outstanding job in bringing in their giving up toward a fair share basis. The employees of St. Elizabeth Hospital increased their gifts from 1965 to 1966 by 522 per cent, and Appleton Memorial Hospital by 417 per cent. H. C. Prange Co. employees show a 192 per cent increase, Zwicker Knitting Mills, 81 per cent and the University of Wisconsin Fox Valley Center, 63 per cent.

Panel to Plan for Protection of Lake

Resource Development Director Gears for Winnebago Project

FOND DU LAC — Freeman, officials from Waupaca, Sheboygan, the newly appointed director of the Department of Dodge, Manitowoc, Calumet, Green Lake and Outagamie Resource Development (DRD) Monday pledged to do everything the water law allows in preventing further spread of pollution and eliminating the present condition of the Lake Winnebago watershed.

Holmer, speaking to conference delegates from around the lake said two very important phases of this law are the sections requiring shoreline and flood plane zoning.

The conference, co-sponsored by state Sen. Walter Hollander and Wolf River Basin Regional Planning Commission, was called in an attempt to get various governmental wheels turning toward a uniform zoning code for lakes and river shores and tributaries.

Holmer explained that one of the important functions of his office will be to govern the use of septic tanks in these water areas. The water resources bill, recently passed by the legislature, gives the DRD jurisdiction over existing septic tank systems and a veto power over plans involving new septic systems.

He said his office hopes to move rapidly in establishing standards for shoreline and flood plane zoning to give the counties some basis to work from. "We want to have these standards established by July 1, 1967 so we can work with local governmental agencies in getting this pollution control started," he said.

"In order to get this done we will have to enlist the assistance and cooperation of county and local governments so that we can work together in getting a action program on the road," he said.

Named at Fond du Lac Conference

FOND DU LAC — The first step toward uniform regulations for Lake Winnebago shoreline development and protection was taken here Monday when a steering committee was created representing five interested counties.

The move came during a nine-county meeting called by State Senator Walter Hollander, R-Rosendale, and the Wolf River Basin Regional Planning Commission to "sell" the county representatives on forming some type of organization to insure that state legislation on prevention of water pollution was carried out.

Appointed to the steering committee were county board chairman G. J. Hipke, Calumet; Sylvester Esler, Outagamie; Joseph Drexler, Winnebago; Marvin Knecht, Green Lake, and Elmer Weiland, Waushara.

Pledged Assistance
Gordon Bubolz, Wolf River Planning Commission chairman, pledged technical assistance from the commission to help in formation of the new "around the lake group."

Bubolz said that he was not particularly interested in having the counties join the Wolf River group but urged them to join forces for a united effort to combat pollution.

Representatives were exposed to the problems in surrounding counties and the conflicts in local land and water use.

Delegates agreed that steps must be taken to first stop the pollution from spreading any further and then take steps toward eliminating non-conforming uses now present.

Sixth Dist. Rep.-Elect William Steiger, Oshkosh, explained that this is the first legislation with some teeth for enforcement.

Water Bill 614 was passed while Steiger was serving his third term as Winnebago County Assemblyman.

He said the bill consolidates the functions of seven offices into the Department of Resource Development. Freeman Holmer, recently appointed department director, outlined the action the new office hoped to carry out.

"Don't Want Sewage"

Vernon Geiger, Outagamie County soil conservationist, explained that Appleton recently decided to go to Lake Winnebago for its water supply and "we don't want to be drinking your sewage when we turn on our taps," he said.

He continued "we think that the southern counties in the watershed of Lake Winnebago have a responsibility to the cities using its water for human consumption to insure that water that enters the lake is clean."

Bubolz showed slides of the Wolf River Basin and explained what his commission was doing to combat the pollution in the upper portion of the river.

"If we work to keep the water in the upper Wolf clean and it comes down to Lake Winnebago and the waters there are already polluted our effort would have been in vain," Bubolz commented.

He also urged four committees to be appointed by the steering committee. They are water quality and quantity, land use planning, recreation and economic development.

The steering committee with Esler as chairman will be utilizing the commission's office for its mechanical work. The first meeting scheduled for mid-January will be arranged through the commission's office, Esler explained.

Waukesha Firm Submits Low Proposal of $185,155 for Project

NEW LONDON — The apparatus for a storm sewer project in the southwestern portion of the city is $185,154. Bids were opened at Monday's common council committee meeting. Donohue and Associates, Sheboygan, city consulting engineers, will review the bids and make their recommendations to the board of public works at the Dec. 20 council meeting.

Ledges Construction Co., Waukesha, was lowest of 12 bidders. Bids were sought on two sections of the program —

Section I, primary lines and ent low bid for a storm sewer, and Section II, lead-in lines. Ledges, owned by Gordon Freeman, a former New London resident, bid $80,056 on the primary work and $105,098.30 on the lead-in lines.

Second low bidder was Joski Construction Co., Green Bay, with a bid of $194,001.

Difference between the high and low bid was $65,400.

Check Accuracy

William White, representative of the engineering firm, said the bids would be checked for accuracy.

Section I consists of the preparatory work so Section II can be done. Total estimated cost of the project was $215,000, about $30,000 more than low bid.

Both sections will require laying more than 8,000 feet of pipe ranging from 8 to 60 inches in diameter.

Section I includes 1,956 feet of pipe from 54 to 60 inches in diameter, 1,550 feet of open ditching and 140 feet of culvert work.

Section II will include installation of 3,769 feet of sewer pipe from 15 to 54 inches in diameter, 295 feet of 10 and 12-inch catch basins and 543 feet of 8 and 12-inch sanitary sewer mains.

The city has budgeted $119,000 for storm sewer work in 1967.

Others Run Ahead

Several divisions and teams are running ahead of the total percentage of the goal since our last report, Van Sistine said. Variety clothing stores, under team captain Jack Close have hit 88 per cent; Schools, under James Cowan, 91; dentists, with Richard Hamilton, 94; professional division, under chairman Ed Merten, 88; and small insurance and real estate offices under Dwight Warren, 106.

"With so many of the areas of our community indicating their support of a united campaign, we, meaning myself and the other 2,000 volunteers, feel sure that Appleton will show the 14 agencies that we want their services to continue as needed. Other cities our size and smaller are going over the top, and I can't believe that Appleton will not show this kind of support and concern," Van Sistine concluded.

Agencies that will share in the budgeting of the Red Feather funds are American Red Cross, Appleton Apostolate, Boy Scouts, Catholic Activities Council, Children's Service Society, Girl Scouts, Golden Age Club, Lutheran Social Services, Mental Health Association, Salvation Army, United Community Services, U.S.O., Visiting Nurse Association and the YMCA.

Youth to Appear in Juvenile Court on Traffic Fatality

NEENAH — The 17-year-old Neenah youth who was found negligent by a six-man jury Saturday afternoon in the traffic death of another youth last Sept. 3 will appear before Judge James G. Sarres in juvenile court this Thursday at the Neenah police station.

Judge Sarres can handle the case in the juvenile court or he can waive the proceedings to adult court where the youth could face a fine of up to $1,000 or a one-year sentence in the county jail or both if found guilty of the charge.

Winnebago County Coroner Art C. Miller conducted the inquest at the Neenah police station Saturday morning and afternoon. Some 12 witnesses, many of them youths who were in the van bus at the time of the crash, testified the driver was speeding and went through two stop signs before the van slammed into a tree near the intersection of Oak and Washington streets.

The driver, a juvenile whose name may not be published under the state juvenile code, was charged with "causing the death of another human being by a high degree of negligence in the use of a vehicle."

presented to the jurors by Dist. Atty. Thomas Fink.

John Otman, 18, son of Mrs. Albin Jury, 412 Fifth St., died at Theda Clark Memorial Hospital at 1:44 a.m. on Sept. 3, about two hours after the crash.

Lovell Surprises Mayors With Visit, Sees Moon Trip

BY WILLIAM C. CAREY
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — It isn't every day that one gets to shake the hand of America's No. 1 space ace and have him tell you he's got high hopes of landing on the moon in about 30 months or so.

Capt. James Lovell, USN, Wisconsin-born astronaut who made history first with the Mercury, the more recent Gemini flights into outer space, was an unexpected but welcome visitor at the National League of Cities annual congress.

Lovell, whose home was Milwaukee until entering the service, said he was "raring to go on the Apollo flight to the moon."

"Nothing Stopping Us"

"There's nothing stopping us now," he said with a grin, flashing a picture of confidence.

Lovell was deluged with questions about his recent Gemini trip of 12 days aloft and walks into space, and reaction received from the public.

"I think the American people have accepted the space program as a way of life," Lovell commented, explaining that on the Mercury flight sometime back he received letters from all parts of the country.

"This time when I got back after 12 days up there, I got home to back mail such as some letters, magazines, advertisements and bills," Lovell added with a smile.

He said the 12 days in space accomplished much and made many contributions to future trips, citing the rendezvous and extensive space walk as a few examples.

"We did a lot of little things up there, too, that we didn't think could be done," Lovell appended.

He noted geologists got a helping hand through the photographs taken of the world — much clearer in detail than any of the past.

Lovell gave credit to the thousands having some direct or indirect connection with the U.S. space program, declaring, "You have to remember there are a lot of people helping to keep us alive."

Asked about unidentified flying objects (UFO's), Lovell said in his flights from Earth and in space he never saw any to his knowledge.

No Ill Effects

Alluding to his Gemini mission and space walk, Lovell said at no time did he have an ill physical effects.

Lovell said recent criticism in some circles about the cost of the space program would have no effect on the morale of the astronauts who will be riding Apollo to the moon by the end of 1969.

"I'm getting ready for it already (the flight) and I know the others are just as eager," Lovell said.

And then the conversation ended on a light note concerning the future of one Capt. James Lovell.

"When we get back from the moon, I'll be looking forward to those old magazines, advertisements and bills," Lovell said with a grin that reflected a portrait of the man's courage and confidence.

Their grandson, David Smith, 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Smith, rural Appleton, received severe facial lacerations.

Grand Dreams For U.N. Have Not Come True

But World Body Has Played Role in Averting Major War

WASHINGTON (AP) — Twenty-one years ago in San Francisco, when the United Nations was patched together, there was almost a feeling of exhilaration around the world.

Perhaps there could be a new beginning when reason and co-operation would prevail and war at last would be disowned as primitive. History indicated otherwise.

But at least there was a chance. In the 16 years since there have been no wars between major powers, but there have been wars. And the two biggest, Korea and Viet Nam, involved the United States.

Although the statesmen of the two nuclear giants of the world, the United States and the Soviet Union, may claim that reason was the persuasive factor in their ability to avoid a head-on clash, fear was a big element, perhaps the biggest.

Not Ideal

Thus, the United Nations has not been the ideal solution of the world's problems and, in the foreseeable future, there is no reason to think it will be.

But so long as the antagonists can meet, argue, dick-er and be made just a little self-conscious about reverting to barbarism there is a chance over many years they may achieve a maturity lacking now.

This kind of belief is perhaps the basic reason why U Thant agreed Thursday to stay on another five years as U.N. secretary-general after announcing last Sept. 1 that his first five-year term, ending this year, was his last.

Both the United States and the Soviet Union wanted him to stay. His agreement to do so, and he was under pressure from many other governments to say yes, may have averted U.N. chaos in trying to find a successor.

Denounced Viet Nam

Thant, 57, a Burmese, has no illusions that the United Nations is the perfect instrument for the salvation of the world, as he made clear in September when he announced he wouldn't serve again.

He particularly denounced the Vietnamese war, calling it cruel and a "reproach to the conscience of humanity." He has proposed three points for a settlement of the war, but they have gotten nowhere.

By himself Thant almost surely will work no miracles, since this would be expecting too much from an individual in his position in a world in its present condition.

But at least he is earnest, he has balance, he is courageous enough to be critical of the big powers, even though he expresses himself in diplomatic language when he cuts at one side or the other.

Perhaps the most important effect in his decision to remain is that he gives the troubled United Nations a sense of continuity it can cling to while stumbling through its self-created fog.

Mock War To be Waged In Kentucky

CADIZ, Ky. (AP) — More than 11,000 troops from the 101st Airborne Division at Ft. Campbell, Ky., will see out about 450 "enemy" guerrillas in mock warfare in western Kentucky this week.

The "enemy" are special forces, Green Beret, personnel from Ft. Bragg, N.C.

The guerrillas have invited private citizens in the 200,000-acre area to take part in the exercise.

Some may be informers, hiding guerrillas in barns and lending farm equipment to aid movement of military implements. Some of the "enemy" will even be dressed in civilian clothes, mingling with Christmas shoppers in the Cadiz area.

Peace of Mind Lost When House Robbed

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Eugene Connelly says he hasn't had peace of mind since thieves broke into his suburban Pittsburgh house several weeks ago.

Recovery of the loot isn't Connelly's major concern.

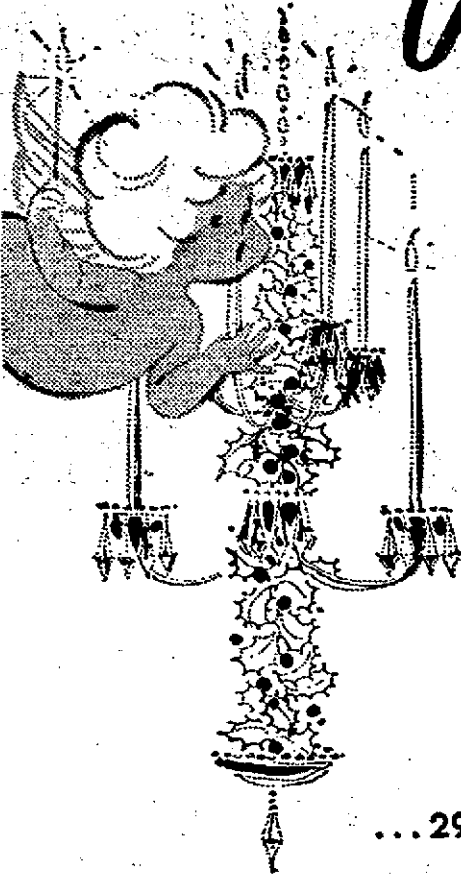

"I've got to have some peace of mind as to who was in my home," he said.

Connelly, 42, offered a $1,000 reward to satisfy his curiosity.

Red Feather Drive Needs Help

A year ago Appleton's Red Feather fund drive went over the top for the first time in a number of years. The community took a good deal of pride in its achievement. And the success of that drive led to several other valuable community accomplishments, the inclusion of the Red Cross and the Mental Health Association in this year's campaign. For the first time Appleton had a true united fund.

It is quite surprising in view of these accomplishments that this year's Red Feather appeal is falling short of its goal.

Granted that the addition of Red Cross and the increased cost of maintaining the other Red Feather services meant a considerable increase in this year's quota. But certainly givers must have been aware that this year they were giving to the Red Feather agencies and the Red Cross in one package. The fact that $238,000 has been collected this year — considerably more than last year's total — demonstrates that many Appleton people did understand.

But that leaves this year's campaign

Twenty-Five Years After

The Japanese militarists who plotted the Pearl Harbor attack of twenty-five years ago thought they were making their part of the world safe for the Asian co-prosperity sphere of their dreams. They could not know that the attack really would bring the United States more fully into Asian affairs and that only after defeat and years of rebuilding would Japan begin to regain its power in the Pacific.

The Pearl Harbor attack was aimed at wiping out American naval strength in the Pacific so that the Japanese could have virtually a free hand in the conquest of much of the Asian mainland. France, Great Britain and Holland, the European countries with the most influence in Asia at the time, were increasingly tied down by the war with Nazi Germany. Japan had already demonstrated that it could defeat or at least hold under control the unorganized masses in China. It had its sights set on the rich lands of the Malay Peninsula, Indonesia and Indochina.

The increased antagonism of the United States to Japan's expansionist aims had to be stymied and Pearl Harbor very nearly did succeed. A report four years later by reporter Foster Hailey shows that the destruction was tremendous. "When the 250 to 300 Japanese planes came roaring in they found the whole area tranquil and unalarmed. In a series of attacks lasting two hours they sank five of the eight battleships, the target ship Utah, the minelayer Ogalla, and the floating drydock in which the destroyer Shaw and a submarine were berthed. The Shaw and Struggles for political office are very real and very enthusiastic. In many parts of the world, the drive for personal power and prestige means civil war or at least serious skirmishes. The rules of the competition differ according to position and nation but the posts are sought ardently.

Another Term for U Thant

But there is one major world position which no one wants. U Thant was re-elected to the post of Secretary General of the United Nations not because he had a good machine working for him or even that he has outstanding qualifications for the job. He had no competition at all.

Thant himself was notably unenthusiastic about taking on another five-year term. Last spring there were rumors that he would not accept a draft and in September he announced that he would rather not run. In the following weeks, however, delegates from almost every country sought him out and prevailed upon him to take another term.

In his acceptance speech, Thant emphasized that "I would like to make it clear that my present decision is not based on any new element which has developed in recent weeks or on any fond hope for the foreseeable future." The serious problems which Thant had listed as facing the United Nations in September have in no way been dispersed. And the most serious of all is the war in Viet Nam and the "continuing intensification of the war." Thant pledged once more to "seize every occasion to recall that this war must be ended and I will continue to regard it as my duty to make every effort on a personal basis to help promote a solution which will bring peace and justice to the people of Viet Nam."

There is danger that the unanimity behind Thant is the result of weakness rather than strength. But in reality Thant still over $25,000 short of its goal. And that goal represents the minimum needs of 14 member agencies. If the $25,000 is not raised it will mean that the present level of community services will have to be cut back.

The real problem is the great difficulty of contacting everyone in the community who is in a position to give. The Red Feather campaign is a voluntary campaign. No professional fund raisers are hired. It is an organization of hundreds of people in the community going out and contacting their friends and neighbors. And in any such effort there are always gaps.

That is why The Post-Crescent in this issue is printing a special appeal to people in the community who were not contacted. We are trying to make it easy for such people to do their fair share.

If 2,500 people came forth with $10 each, that would do the job.

And let's remember that a $10 donation represents less than $1 for each of the agencies.

two other destroyers, all three of the other battleships, three of the cruisers, and several of the other ships were damaged. All but one of the airfields were left smoldering wrecks of hangars and 187 planes. Three thousand, three hundred and three men were dead and 1,270 were wounded. The cost to the enemy was five two-man submarines and twenty-eight planes."

But of course the cost, totaled up for years later, was much greater and included the hundreds of thousands who died at Hiroshima and Nagasaki. Instead of driving the United States out of Asia, the attack invited us in to fill the vacuum left by the departing European colonial powers. Ironically Japan is far more modern and economically healthy than the militarists probably dreamed of. And her strength is needed to balance the threat of a new tyranny in Asia, Red China.

One cannot help but speculate over what might have happened if the Pearl Harbor attack had been a complete success and the United States was not able to recover in time to defeat Japan so decisively. What would be the influence today of Soviet Russia, the Communists in China and North Viet Nam, Japan and the United States in Asia?

To those who vividly remember Pearl Harbor, 25 years is not a very long time for the changes of outlook and allegiance that have been wrought in the world. If there is one thing that the attack and its aftermath teach, it is that there is no crystal ball for determining the course of world events.

has generally been outspoken about his opinions. He moved into the Congo although eventually the U.N. troops had to be withdrawn because of lack of funds. He well understood that troop activities could not halt the Vietnamese war but U.N. troops were authorized to move into Cyprus. Thant determined that Indonesia's charges against the Malaysian Federation were groundless and he strongly criticized the Diem government before it fell. His efforts to get the North Vietnamese to even speak to him have been so far fruitless but it is possible that if Hanoi ever gets to the point of seeking negotiations, it might work through the secretariat. And Thant's behind the scenes activities apparently have about convinced the French and Russians that they should make the necessary "voluntary" contributions to the United Nations. Both countries have refused to pay assessments for peace-keeping operations with which they disagree. A compromise would not solve the legal aspects of their refusal but it would demonstrate that Thant has convinced them that the United Nations is worth preserving.

Certainly this has been a question in the minds of people from a number of nations. The U.N. cannot bring peace unless both sides in a conflict want it. It is always in danger of being used for the selfish and limited aims of one particular nation or blocs of nations. If the U.N. still is man's "last, best hope" for peace and justice, it is a sorry commentary upon the state of the world.

But the effort to retain Thant and his final acceptance indicates that there is an even greater fear of doing without the U.N. It is a place where the overwhelming majority of the nations in the world can meet together. In the long run that may prove to be rather important.

Appleton at Paris Exhibit in 1867?

Quoted from the Appleton Post for Dec. 13, 1866.

Most folks know that there is to be at Paris next year, an exhibition of articles of industry and art of all nations.

Many parts of the United States have already prepared to send thereto, ores and minerals, native woods, remarkable growths of grain, useful cultivated plants, machines, tools, manufactured products and the like.

sented there: and the exercise of a becoming activity and enterprise will represent her.

We can send a variety of excellent samples of wood manufacture — some in the rough, some finished. Among these would be spokes, hubs, felloes, and the whole range of sawed, turned or bent stuffs for wagons, carriages and sleighs; furniture stuffs: staves and barrels made by machinery; shingles, and other things.

Whatever is sent must be sent at once to Milwaukee to the address of Mr. A. M. Helmer, Esq. The railways agree to carry all contributions duly marked and authenticated, free of charge.

Manufacturers of Appleton! It is in your interest to do something. Full particulars may be had by calling at the office of The Post.

Prohibition Didn't Work Earlier; Part-Prohibition No Good Either

Editor, Post-Crescent:

The present laws we have against drinking defeat their purpose. People don't automatically become mature, intelligent, and responsible at 18, or 21. Why then do we have laws setting the age at which a person is "old enough to drink"? I think such laws should be abolished, not because I'm in any rush to get liquor, but because the laws are not accomplishing their purposes. To many people who reach the "magic age" they give a false sense of maturity and readiness. They have an even worse effect on those who are under the drinking age, and tend to confuse alcohol with a sign of being grown-up.

Many teen-agers view alcohol as a sign of sophistication and, that drinking it while under age makes them just a little bit better than their peers. And many times there is a maturity in the under age drinker that is not present in one who is "of age." Age is not the primary factor (or rather, shouldn't be) in determining who can, and who can't. Actually, the under-age drinker is like the little child who is forbidden any cookies for the rest of the day. Leave him within reach of the cookie jar, and he'll sneak some. He'll eat them too fast to enjoy them, and will probably get a stomach ache, but he was "getting away" with something.

I'm not suggesting that

100-Year-Old Woman Suggests Happy Life

BUCKEYE, Ariz. (AP) — Mrs. Nancy Martin observed her 100th birthday with these observations:

"I live alone and like it. After outliving three husbands, it's nice to do things when and where you want to."

cookies and brandy are the same thing; alcohol can ruin your life, not just your figure and appetite. Laws are needed of course, but the ones we have now are not the answer. If the drinking age were repealed, for a time some of the "emancipated" might drink just for the fun of it. But the thrill of testing a new freedom would wear off quickly. Drinking is expensive enough to wear a hole in any budget and besides, liquor has its own built-in penalties. If it were no longer sophisticated and daring to drink, fewer teens would want to court the often unpleasant after-effects.

Of course, not everyone wants to drink, but liquor is here to stay. Prohibition didn't work out in the earlier part of the century, and part-prohibition isn't working now. The decision to drink or not to drink should be left up to the family and the individual, not the government. I believe that if you're going to drink, the best place to start is in the home, not a dimly lit bar. Then, when you are ready, when your parents lift the limits for you, you may drink outside of the home. It seems to me that repealing the drinking age limit will get the teen drinkers out of the car and give them a personal sense of responsibility.

Wisconsin Report

State's Presidential Preference Primary Will be Changed in '67

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON — Speculation and discussion about presidential politics in Wisconsin in preparation for the 1968 national elections is unrealistic, if not altogether invalid, without a recognition of the likelihood that the Wisconsin presidential primary mechanism will be fundamentally altered by the 1967 Legislature.

Perhaps because it completed its work and filed its recommendations many months ago, before the voting of this fall generated such deep interest in the 1968 presidential election and its outlook, it has been generally overlooked that a blue ribbon advisory commission chosen by Gov. Knowles nearly a year ago has worked out a complete revision of the famous Wisconsin presidential primary system.

Because that commission included the highest ranking organization officials of both parties, including Chairmen Fish of the Republicans and Hanson of the Democrats, and representative legislators among others, it must be assumed that the Legislature will review its proposals seriously and sympathetically.

If the Legislature adopts them, as now seems a good probability, the presidential politicking in Wisconsin will be entirely changed — and almost surely in ways that will have the approval of the political professionals as well as serious private citizens whatever their political inclinations.

PUBLICITY UNDESERVED

The Wisconsin presidential primary system has had a good deal of publicity that it probably does not deserve. It connotes the democratic idea — and it is, truly, a more democratic method than the convention or non-elective system of choosing nominating delegates that prevails in so much of the country.

Yet it is not truly an election. One major drawback is that a de facto candidate for the presidency can file his name on the Wisconsin ballot or ignore the Wisconsin election as he pleases. Over the years there have been more candidates not listed here than those who entered. Mostly the Wisconsin candidates were those who were forced to enter or believed they were required to do so for a demonstration of their popular support and the publicity bonus resulting over the other states. Such men as Eisenhower, Stevenson, Truman, Johnson and others of recent involvement didn't bother.

The new proposition is a simple, fair and democratic one, in its essential details.

It would provide that election officers would list on the Wisconsin ballot those men who are actually candidates, whatever their private convenience, although with a provision that they could repudiate the idea by formal notice. Thus the people of Wisconsin would probably get, in most presidential years, the true list of presidential contenders that the authors of the Wisconsin primary law thought they were providing so many decades ago.

POLITICIANS, * * *

Not to be overlooked in such an arrangement, moreover, is the considerable relief it will afford local political leaders in most presidential years.

Under the pending proposal, the men and women chosen as Wisconsin convention delegates of both parties, would be selected by the party organizations, without listing on the ballot, and pledged by law to support the choice of the people of Wisconsin as shown in the public vote. Thus the voters would concentrate on the qualities of the presidential aspirants without being diverted by extraneous personality considerations of the delegates. But perhaps more important, such a system would avoid the delicate, risky and unpleasant necessity for early presidential choices by the leading men of the parties, while preserving for them seats in the national conventions as representatives of the state.

To illustrate: Sen. Nelson, a candidate for re-election in 1968, would find it extremely difficult to make a choice in the spring between Sen. Kennedy and President Johnson. Similarly, Gov. Knowles might find it distasteful to choose between Gov. Romney and Richard Nixon among others who may be involved in the presidential nomination fight.

Cooperation Is Better Word Than Conquest

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

The dominant word in the world's dictionary today is "conquest." We speak of "the conquest of space," or "the conquest of disease," or "the conquest of nature."

I happen to believe it is a

wrong word, a dangerous word, an illusory word. The proper word we ought to use is "co-operation." Only if man operates with the external elements in the world can we survive and flourish; if we try to "conquer" them, we shall fall victim to our own ill-considered efforts.

As Dr. Bodo Manstein warned, in a scientific forum held at Stuttgart last spring, man has injected himself into the natural order as a dominant factor — without considering our tolerance toward these rapid changes, and without sufficiently understanding the long-range effects of technology.

We have rushed ahead too fast with antibiotics in our "conquest of disease." In our relentless campaign for the "conquest of nature," we have ignored the balance of nature, and one ominous result is the worldwide change in the bacterial flora. We are spending billions in our "conquest of space" to deliver a man to that sterile slag-heap called "the moon" before we are ready to handle so massive a project.

In his own practice of gynecology, Dr. Manstein reported that the number of malformations is increasing slowly but steadily. As a conclusion, according to the SSRS Newsletter, he "urged that we should stop pushing ahead in all areas without limit; we should confine our attention to essentials."

The whole realm of nature is something to work with, not against. Man is not an alien invader but an inextricable part of the pattern of nature. Until we better understand our own stresses, our own tolerances, our own capacities and limitations, our mad rush into technological "progress" could well land us in a serious, if not permanent, regression.

It is one thing to advance our theoretical knowledge — which should be pushed to the absolute frontier — but quite another thing to tamper with the ecology of the earth and to disrupt the delicate homeostasis of the human organism. All change is not progress, as the political conservatives quite properly remind us; and too-rapid changes in our physical environment can be as damaging and unsettling as a revolution in the body politic.

A shrewd doctor of my acquaintance recently said to me, "I'm very wary about taking any kind of drug myself — because I suspect that any drug strong enough to do me good is also strong enough to do me harm." This is a lesson we all still have to learn.

Democratic Defeats May Hurt Labor

Unions Now Must Deal With Men They Opposed at Polls

BY ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Widespread political activity of organized labor in the last campaign may have hit its absolute low with an Oct. 21 editorial in a Dayton,

Novak Evans

Ohio, labor publication written by local Building Trades Council head Mike Liskany.

Provocatively titled "Inflation, Street Riots, Elections?", the editorial was nothing less than a bid for the white backlash in behalf of Rep. Rodney Love, the district's Democratic congressman against State Sen. Charles Whalen, his liberal Republican challenger. Liskany's editorial pointed out Whalen's support of open housing and attempted to link him with a local Negro activist running an independent campaign for the state legislature.

Although Whalen beat Love as part of the Republican landslide in Ohio, he has not forgotten that Oct. 21 excursion by labor into off-color politics. Ordinarily, Whalen might give labor more votes in Congress than most Republicans. But now, it would be more than human for him to give special attention to the needs of the Dayton Building Trades Council.

Seldom during the 1966 campaign were labor politicians as self-defeating as Dayton's Mike Liskany. But his blind partisanship illustrates a nationwide trend that is causing some soul-searching in the upper levels of organized labor: The inseparability of the labor movement and the Democratic Party.

Indeed, in some states (particularly in the Great Lakes region where the United Auto Workers (UAW) are strong), the labor movement was the Democratic Party in 1966.

Largely Financed by UAW In Michigan, hierarchies of the state AFL-CIO and the Democratic Party are identical. In Illinois, Sen. Paul Douglas' unsuccessful campaign in down-state areas was run and financed largely by the UAW. In Cincinnati, a UAW field man was put on permanent duty to handle Rep. John Gilligan's losing bid for re-election.

This marriage of Democratic Party and the labor movement hurt both partners. The union-made label (as explicit as Douglas campaign workers wearing UAW armbands in Illinois) handicapped the Democrats. Less obviously, the total labor commitment to the Democrats inhibits Republican co-operation with union leaders in areas — such as Michigan — where the Republican Party is moving to the left.

Those labor officials who would prefer an arm's length attitude toward the Democrats have a convincing excuse for doing otherwise in 1966: President Johnson's dismantling of the Democratic National Committee's campaign staff.

With the party not doing its own work, the AFL-CIO's Committee on Political Education (COPE) took over party functions to try to save pro-labor Democratic candidates. In private conversation, COPE officials make no secret of their displeasure with this role.

But this does not account for the Labor-Democratic linkup that began long before President Johnson started dismantling his party machinery. Over the past generation, union leaders in state after state have dropped any pretense at nonpartisanship — even when national officials would wish otherwise.

Sure Bet For Election Consider this year's events in New Jersey. National AFL-CIO leaders wanted a local endorsement of Liberal Republican Sen. Clifford Case, who has a solid pro-labor voting record and was a sure bet for re-election with or without labor's help.

But New Jersey labor leaders are an integral part of the state Democratic Party. After being importuned over the telephone by Democratic Gov. Richard Hughes, state AFL-CIO officials endorsed Case's undistinguished Democratic foe. It was an act utterly removed from AFL founder Samuel Gompers' precept that labor should reward its friends and punish its enemies.

There were some isolated instances of non-partisanship this year. The Maryland AFL-CIO risked the wrath of its rank-and-file by endorsing moderate Republican Spiro Agnew for governor against his white backlash Democratic foe. A Democratic challenger lost his AFL-CIO endorsement by launching a backlash campaign against Ohio's Rep. William McCulloch, a father of the 1964 civil rights act. In the south, labor gave covert support to Republicans on the lesser-of-the-two-evils' theory.

But these were exceptions. Labor's rule of 1966 was Democratic partisanship that did not win elections but may have alienated such potential friends as Republican Chuck Whalen in Dayton.

Police Unconvinced, So Young Car Thieves Demonstrate Technique

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Police report the arrest of two young auto thieves so tiny one squatted on the floor to work the gas and brake while the other, perched atop a wash pan on the driver's seat, did the steering. Inspector H.R. Ray said Tuesday the youngsters, 9 and 13, admitted using this technique to take 10 stolen automobiles on joyrides.

"We didn't believe they could do it," Ray said, "until they demonstrated their system." The system came to grief however when one of the boys pushed the gas pedal instead of the brake. The car rammed a tree and police collared them.

his agency's budget actually is spent outside the agency, providing more than $400,000 jobs in 10,000 industries, research centers and universities.

Webb predicted that in one-third of a generation in space age technology, $83 billion can be reaped by the human race in the U. S. and world. Webb said he was talking about "feedback."

He said accomplishments by Capt. James Lovell on the Gemini flight will result in great progress in science and medicine. Webb said much has been learned about man's physical being and this technology will someday reduce by 50 per cent the normal death rate within a three-day period of hospitalization.

In connection with the space program, Webb said, the best brains have been tapped on more than 150 campuses where extensive studies are underway into basic scientific environment of the human race.

He said NASA now has one of 11 automated biological laboratories in the world and someday hopes to land one on Mars.

Countless Benefits
Webb said cities and man can reap countless benefits from the space program. He reminded that before space missions, most information man had come from Earth.

"Now we have information from Mars, Venus and the sun," Webb added. He said further space "feedback" will result in improved worldwide communications; long-range weather forecasting; possible contact with other beings; detecting hostile missiles; competition or cooperation, or both, with Russia; improved education; a revolution in medicine with regard to treatment problems; data processing; and providing the tools to cope with rapid change.

"All these things and many more do have value to you in building the city of man," Webb concluded.

Webb said he believed the cities had a good case for more federal funds.

"But I do not believe the cities will win the kind of battle that would take away from our medical and space programs," Webb said later during a press conference.

He emphasized space programs were not in competition with those of the cities, but were helping them.

"I guess you might say the space program is getting to be a whipping boy."

U. S. Reports 26 Peace 'Feelers' Made Since '64

WASHINGTON (AP) — About the most perishable commodity in the diplomatic world today is a Viet Nam peace feeler.

The State Department says that since 1964 there have been 26 major ones initiated or supported by the United States. It says these efforts are continuing.

But no sooner is one launched in the corridors of the United Nations—or over a vodka martini at a diplomatic reception in Washington or Moscow—or reported in a whispered conversation in New Delhi, Belgrade or Algiers — than it is exploded with a massive denial.

"One has sometimes heard of peace feelers," Secretary of State Dean Rusk told a Canadian interviewer at the start of the 37-day pause in U.S. bombings in Viet Nam last Christmas.

"Actually these have arisen on the initiative of some neeple. I don't know of any initiatives taken by Hanoi to seek peace," he said.

"Others — third parties, other governments, perhaps private citizens — have had conversations with Hanoi, and when some of these are made public these are translated into something called peace feelers by Hanoi."

Denied by Hanoi
"Hanoi has denied that they have made any peace feelers," Rusk said.

'Bourgeois Sex Nonsense' Thing Of Past in Cuba
MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Cuban women, says Havana Radio, never had it so good.

No more of that "bourgeois, inferior sex nonsense," boasted the Miami-monitored broadcast: "The Cuban women of today are agricultural workers, cane cutters, mechanics, traffic police, members of the revolutionary armed forces and invaluable companions in difficult moments when the fatherland needs their services."

The revolution, they were reminded Monday night, has allowed women to show they can handle heavy work.

The occasion for the broadcast was a national meeting of the Cuban Women's Federation.

Helping Motorists Help Themselves

State Driver Safety Program Getting Results

MADISON (AP) — Wisconsin's new program for prodding problem drivers to shape up — and make the roads safer for other users too — is paying off.

"The program is less than eight months old and we're already finding a marked improvement in the records of these drivers against those who need help but don't get it," says Dean Van Gorden, who heads the project for the State Motor Vehicle Department.

The 1965 Legislature established the program, one of the first of its kind in the country. The overall aim is to locate problem drivers before they get into serious trouble and help them understand and correct their driving flaws before they lose their licenses or their lives.

Fifteen analysts who received intensive training are in charge. They are based in nine districts with headquarters in Madison, West Bend, Tomah, Antigo, Rice Lake, Green Bay, Elkhorn, Waukesha and Milwaukee.

Designated Problem
The law designates the driver with seven to 11 demerits a problem driver and singles him out for help. Help consists of individual counseling, instructions, group counseling and on-the-road driving with an analyst for company.

Twelve demerits mean loss of a driving permit. When a driver lands in the 7-11 category, he gets a notice from the state. The recipient is told he's in line for a re-examination of his driving ability and a personal interview.

He also is told when and where to appear and is reminded to furnish a car that's in safe operating condition.

"Failure or neglect to appear for such examination and/or interview may result in the cancellation of your present operator's license," the notice warns.

Inattentive driving and speeding are the major causes for accumulating seven or more demerits. Sixty-five per cent of those getting department help are in the 19-26 age bracket.

Extensive Records
The state keeps extensive records, realizing that the project has the potential of developing into a major effort to improve driving habits.

"For the most part, response to notices is good," Van Gorden notes. "Few drivers want to lose their licenses this way because they know they'll have to take an examination and a road test and pay $3 to boot."

Nineteen of each 20 drivers with 7-11 demerits gets a notice to report. The record of the one who does not get a notice goes into what is called a "control group." Then records are compared.

In six months it was determined that problem drivers who received individual help from analysts had 24 per cent fewer violations and accidents than those in the "control group."

It also was found that drivers helped through group counseling had 62 per cent fewer violations and accidents than those who had no help.

After problem drivers complete their counseling and improvement programs, they are asked if they want to make

The man got out of the car on U.S. 45 near the fairgrounds corner in Oshkosh and said to her, "Thanks for the ride, honey." He then started walking toward town, she said.

Mrs. Learman drove to the sheriff department in Appleton to notify authorities, saying she was too frightened to call from Oshkosh.

The Appleton woman described the hitchhiker as 20 to 30 years old, about five feet, seven inches tall and of medium build.

She said the man had dark hair with long sideburns. He wore a dark hat, dark trousers, and a dark hip-length coat, and tan knit gloves. Mrs. Learman said the man kept his coat collar up and kept looking away from her. She also said that he kept clearing his throat.

formation of a broad-based government with which independence could be negotiated and testing of the reaction of all Rhodesians to the settlement.

These were tobacco, sugar, chrome, asbestos, iron ore, pig iron, meat, meat products, copper, leather, hides and skins.

Not On Oil
The draft resolution does not include a ban on export of oil to Rhodesia. The British are expected to come under heavy pressure to include that vital commodity when the resolution is reviewed by the Commonwealth Sanctions Committee Wednesday.

The United States and Canada were believed to agree with African and Asian countries who want oil included in the embargo.

Throughout the year-old rebellion Britain has resisted such demands, believing that a mandatory ban on oil to landlocked Rhodesia would result in a head-on clash with South Africa.

The South African government has turned a blind eye to the fleet of private road tankers that supply Rhodesia's oil. It is against imposing sanctions against Rhodesia whatever happens.

Warning By Wilson
Wilson warned in the House of Commons Monday night that compulsory sanctions against Rhodesia "must not be allowed to develop into a confrontation, whether economic or military, involving the whole of southern Africa."

Diplomatic sources reported that Wilson may have reached an understanding with South Africa Prime Minister Balthazar J. Vorster's government. It could provide for a limited oil embargo, and South Africa in return would limit its help to the Smith regime, the sources said.

New Japanese Minister Aims To be Premier

Takeo Miki Wants To be Nation's Youngest Leader

TOKYO (AP) — Takeo Miki, Japan's new foreign minister, was graduated from the University of California in 1937 saying that his greatest ambition was to become Japan's youngest prime minister.

He was 30 then and he is 58

now. By Japanese standards he still has time to make it. Usually prime ministers are in their 60s.

Miki returned to Japan immediately after his graduation and started working on his ambition. He was elected in 1937 to the House of Representatives in Tokyo. In World War II he was a member of the government party in politics but his activities were minor and did not warrant his purging from public office after the war.

Progressive Wing
Now Miki is a member of the ruling Liberal-Democratic party's progressive wing. He is considered conservative in his views.

While he promotes improved relations with Red China, he opposes seeking them at the expense of the United States.

Shortly after his appointment Saturday by Prime Minister Eisaku Sato, Miki told newsmen that under his direction Japan's foreign policy will remain firmly aligned with the West.

"Friendship between Japan and the United States is the basis of Japanese foreign policy," he said. "But an uncompromising pro-American policy is something too extreme I think one-sided foreign policy is a mistake."

Rusk Meeting
Miki's first real undertaking as foreign minister was his meeting this week with U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk who is touring several Far East nations while en route to a meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in Paris.

Though this is Miki's first venture into the diplomatic field, he has had considerable Cabinet experience and is known abroad particularly as minister of international trade and industry in Sato's previous administration.

In shifting from trade and industry to the Foreign Ministry, Miki technically is moving up a notch in the Cabinet hierarchy.

Miki's political fortunes got a big boost two years after his election in 1937 when he married the daughter of a prominent Japanese businessman, giving him access to political funds. He has two sons.

Many Parties
After World War II, Miki joined the Cooperative-Democratic party, one of the many small conservative parties that sprung up at the time, only to be subsequently amalgamated into the present Liberal-Democratic party.

Twice Miki was named Liberal-Democratic party secretary-general, the second time in 1957. He has also held Cabinet posts under Prime Ministers Tetsu Katayama, Ichiro Hatoyama and Hayato Ikeda before assuming the Trade and Industry Ministry portfolio.

In the meantime, Miki expanded his influence within the party, forming his own faction.

He is soft-spoken and persuasive, but created a stir not long ago when he headed a movement to eliminate party factions, the existence of which has plagued party cohesiveness because of rivalries.

The movement failed, but Miki's efforts earned him a reputation as a man on the side of "clean politics."

Let's EXPLORE YOUR MIND

IS IT POSSIBLE FOR TWO HEARTS TO BEAT AS ONE? YES NO

Yes, it happens. At the Duke University parapsychology laboratory, they find that better than 76 per cent of the thousands of thought-transfer cases involve persons who are closely attached to one another. They find that love is a powerful motivating interest which heightens one's extrasensory perception. Lovers often find themselves thinking the same thoughts even to the point of being able to finish one another's sentences. Has this ever happened to you? Most people are neurotic at times! True — False — True. This is the familiar state of nervousness that makes one fearful or anxious or depressed about the problems one faces. You feel tense and may be apprehensive and suffer such physical symptoms as headaches, sleeplessness or upset stomach. Only when it

Phlebitis Condition Has No Relation to Arteries

By JOSEPH MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please explain the difference between hardening of the arteries and phlebitis. I had phlebitis in my leg following an operation. Sometimes the two middle continues or develops into more serious conditions is it usually called illness — an impaired capacity for carrying on the business of living. Most of us could improve our mental health by more self-insight and better coping procedures. Counseling helps many out of feeling miserable unnecessarily.

The booklet, "The Only Child," will answer these questions in solid, frank terms, in easy-to-understand language. Send 25 cents and your name and address (including ZIP Code) for each copy. also burn. I am 72. — Mrs. J. F. Phlebitis and hardening of the arteries are quite different. As we grow older, we all have some degree of hardening of the arteries, a thickening of one type or another of the walls. This may retard circulation. The degree of hardening is what matters. If it is severe, we have trouble. If it is not, it is just something we have to put up with, like gray hair and wrinkles.

Phlebitis does not involve the arteries. It is inflammation of a vein wall, sometimes from an injury. It also retards circulation in the affected area by impeding the return flow of blood.

Hardening of the arteries may interfere with the delivery of blood to the tissues. The burning sensation in your legs could, indeed, be a consequence of hardening of the arteries. Sometimes medication can give relief, so discuss this with your doctor.

As to the locking fingers, that would be a problem involving the joints, or cramps, and would have nothing to do with either the condition of your arteries or veins. My principal thought is to note whether this tends to occur when you are tired or cold. Avoiding too much strain and keeping your hands from being chilled may help.

Dear Dr. Molner: I would like your opinion on the vitamin value of orange juice packaged and frozen in cans, and the juice as squeezed from fresh fruit. — C. K. G.

This has been tested, which is much better than relying on an opinion, including mine. The chief vitamin is Vitamin C, and the amount is essentially the same whether in canned, frozen or fresh juice. Any difference is so slight as to be of no consequence nutritionally.

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband takes baking soda and water every evening, and sometimes twice a day. Is this harmful? He says no, but I say yes. — Mrs. J. W. S.

Let's put it this way: It can be harmful, and I consistently recommend against taking soda habitually unless prescribed by your physician. There are certain conditions in which alkalinizing the system is important.

The digestive tract is supposed to be somewhat acid. In fact, a small amount of dilute hydrochloric acid is one of the necessary digestive juices. Alkali (soda being one) neutralizes acid and can, in sufficient quantity, actually interfere with digestion.

If too much acid is neutralized, the human body, in its logical way, will try to produce more. Hence you can have an irritating swing from too much alkali to too much acid.

Why does your husband take baking soda anyway? It's no cure-all for whatever ails one's insides. By dosing himself with soda, he may be neglecting some condition which needs attention.

WSU-O Best Fitted For New Programs, State Regents Feel

Future Academic Plans Include Extra Research, Graduate Work

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Wisconsin State University-Oshkosh is best fitted to serve the "dynamic future" of the populous Fox River Valley by expanding its research, public service and graduate work beyond the traditional undergraduate services, according to a report filed today with the Board of Regents of State Colleges.

In guarded language, the regents were told by staff officers that the Oshkosh campus, rather than the new branch of the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay, is the logical higher education center for the Fox River Valley.

The comments came in a long-range academic enlargement plan for the state university system which was filed today with the regents' education committee, and will be reviewed at a meeting of the full board Wednesday.

Hint of Conflict

It was the first hint of potential conflict between the state university and the University of Wisconsin systems in the development of broadened higher education programs in the future.

A year ago the two systems collided in the legislature, in a dispute about the proper jurisdiction for the new University of Wisconsin regional branches proposed for the Valley and Racine-Kenosha areas, and the University of Wisconsin won the political engagement.

The new state university report outlined in general the natural expansion course of the system, including a widening of graduate school programs. It noted that "as yet, the full scope of the new institutions scheduled for Green Bay and Racine-Kenosha areas has not yet been determined."

Then it "respectfully submitted" that "in the dynamic future confronting Wisconsin the need for additional comprehensive

Huber, Obey Win Assembly Minority Posts

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — In a one hour caucus this morning, Assembly Democrats chose Robert Huber (D-West Allis) as minority leader for the 1967 Legislature.

Huber was one of the few top Democratic assemblymen to survive the fall elections and stood without opposition for the post. He has held the post previously four times.

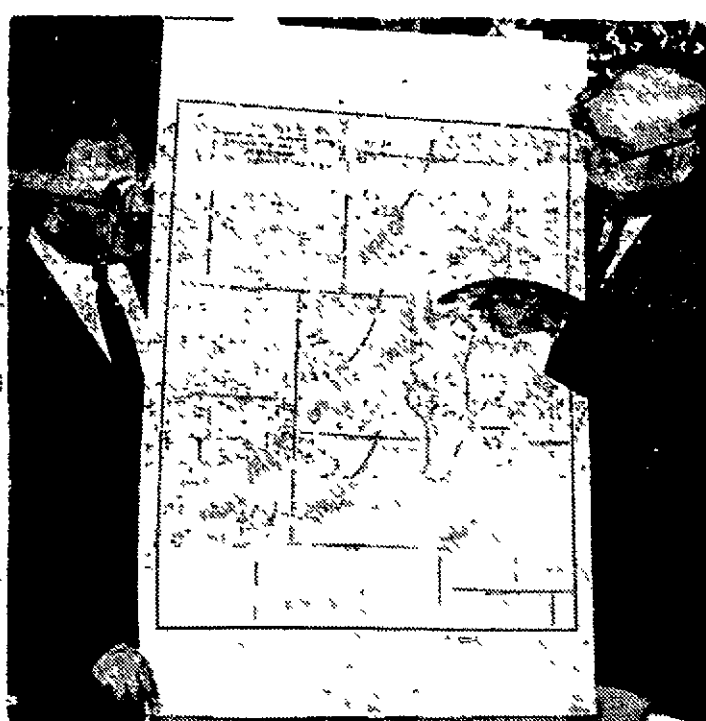

The Democrats, now in a 53-47 minority, decided a three way race for assistant minority leader by naming David Obey, Wausau. He replaces Norman Anderson of Madison as assistant floor leader.

The fact that Anderson comes from the same metropolitan area is considered to be one reason why the Democrats chose Obey, a northerner.

The third candidate for the assistant leadership was Fred Kessler of Milwaukee. Chosen Democratic caucus chairman was George Molinaro of Kenosha. Ben Riehl of Athens was chosen caucus secretary and Bruce Pelouquin, caucus vice chairman.

State Tax Share Total $1.6 Million

Payments $16,000 More Than Anticipated in 1966 Budget

Appleton's proportionate share of state income tax payments totaled $1,681,152.70 for 1966, approximately $16,000 more than the expected share included in the 1966 city budget.

City Treas. Ray L. Feuerstein

Monday announced receipt of the last of three state tax apportionments by the city. The check received Monday was for $412,219.36.

State tax shares were paid Appleton in three portions. Other payments were made last spring and in August. The money is placed in the city's general fund.

An estimate of $1,665,000 was included in the 1966 city budget. In 1965 state tax receipts fell short of the budget estimate, leaving a deficit of more than $21,500.

The 1966 budget appropriation was increased by $65,000 but the state tax share increased by more than $102,000.

Left Guard Agent Denies State Charge

William S. Martine, 34, 308 Edgewood Drive, Neenah, agent for Old Pro, Inc., which operates the Left Guard Charcoal House on W. College Avenue, Monday afternoon pleaded innocent of a charge brought following investigation by state agents.

Outagamie County Judge Gustave J. Keller ordered bond of $250, and set May 24 for trial. Martine posted bond shortly after his arraignment. He appeared with a Madison attorney, Donald Eiesenberg.

Martine is charged, in a complaint signed by Dist. Atty. Nick F. Schaefer, with "permitting the obstruction of a full and complete view of the interior of the premises (The Left Guard) from the outside during hours in which the sale of liquor is prohibited."

Two agents of the Wisconsin Department of Taxation, Division of Beverage and Cigarette Taxes, reportedly made their investigation early the morning of Nov. 29. The Left Guard, which opened a few months ago, is at 3025 W. College Ave., in the Town of Grand Chute.

The agents reportedly found about a dozen persons, several of them Green Bay Packers football players, in a room other than the main barroom about 1:45 a.m. Nov. 29.

Freedom Man Charged After Beer Party Raid

Claim Carl Farrell Provided Beer For 12 Minors

A 26-year-old route 1, Kaukauna man, whose home at Freedom was raided by police late Sunday night, was arraigned in Outagamie County Court Branch 2 Monday afternoon on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of 12 minors by furnishing them with beer.

Karl D. Farrell, who the court was told is on parole to the State Department of Public Welfare, asked for a continuance to allow him time to consult an attorney. Judge Gustave J. Keller set 2 p.m. Friday for the taking of a plea. Farrell is in jail in lieu of posting a $1,500 bond.

Two youths, who county police said were attending a beer party at the Farrell home Sunday night, were fined $50 and costs and their driver's licenses were restricted for 30 days after they pleaded guilty of possessing beer off licensed premises.

Confiscate Beer The youths were Donald Reader, 19, route 1, Kaukauna, and Larry B. Zimmerman, route 1, Suring. Their licenses are restricted to driving only to and from work.

Eighteen persons, including 13 juveniles, were taken into custody following the raid about 11:45 p.m. Sunday at Farrell's home at Freedom. Police confiscated a quarter barrel of beer, a case of empty beer bottles, a six pack of beer and two empty wine bottles from Farrell's home.

Persons in the house at the time of the raid ranged in age from 15 to 26, police said. Several youths were referred to juvenile authorities.

Parking Meter 'Spits' Cash; Three Boys Turn Money Over to Police

Appleton police had words of praise Sunday for three Appleton boys who turned over more than $6 in change from a parking meter that split open when it was struck by a hit and run car.

The double meter was located in front of the new YMCA on E. Lawrence Street.

Police said Scott and John Brush, 318 E. Atlantic St., and Chris Lison, 522 N. Lawe St., picked the money from the street and sidewalk and brought it to Lison's father, who called police.

Lovell Surprises Mayors With Visit, Sees Moon Trip

BY WILLIAM C. CAREY

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — It isn't every day that one gets to shake the hand of America's No. 1 space ace and have him tell you he's got high hopes of landing on the moon in about 30 months or so.

Capt. James Lovell, USN, Wisconsin-born astronaut who made history first with the Mercury, the more recent Gemini flights into outer space, was an unexpected but welcome visitor at the National League of Cities annual congress.

"It's always good to meet someone from Wisconsin," the slender 40-year-old spaceman said. "I know the Appleton and Green Bay area well."

"Nothing Stopping Us" Lovell, whose home was Milwaukee until entering the service, said he was "raring to go on the Apollo flight to the moon."

"There's nothing stopping us now," he said with a grin, flashing a picture of confidence.

Lovell was deluged with questions about his recent Gemini trip of 12 days aloft and walks into space, and reaction received from the public.

"I think the American people have accepted the space program as a way of life," Lovell commented, explaining that on the Mercury flight sometime back he received letters from all parts of the country.

Plane Used to Locate Runaways After Crash

OMRO — Four state patrolmen, three conservation wardens and an airplane were used Monday afternoon to apprehend two Oshkosh youths who ran into a swamp after the stolen car one was driving was involved in a three-car crash in which two persons were injured.

State police said the stolen car, driven by Ernest Hanson, 18, 2323 N. Main St., Oshkosh, was traveling east on State 21, when it struck a car driven by Kenneth Walters, 20, route 1, Berlin.

Walters was attempting to make a left turn onto Poysan Road where the accident occurred at 3:45 p.m. Monday, reports said.

The Walters auto was pushed into the path of a car driven by Allen Abraham, 47, Montello, who was driving west on 21. Abraham and Walters were hospitalized, police said.

The Oshkosh youth and his juvenile companion ran into a swampy area after the accident. An intensive search of one and one-half hours was needed to apprehend the youths.

Conservation department aircraft and state, county and Omro police took part in the search. The youths were apprehended when spotted from the air and their location pinpointed to searchers on the ground.

Hanson was arraigned this morning in Winnebago County Court Branch 3 on charges of auto theft. The juvenile who accompanied Hanson appeared before James Sarres, juvenile judge.

FOND DU LAC — The first step toward uniform regulations for Lake Winnebago shoreline development and protection was taken here Monday when steering committee was created representing five interested counties.

The move came during a nine-county meeting called by State Senator Walter Hollander, R-Rosendale, and the Wolf River Basin Regional Planning Commission to "sell" the county representatives on forming some type of organization to insure that state legislation on prevention of water pollution was carried out.

Appointed to the steering committee were county board chairman G. J. Hipke, Calumet; Sylvester Esler, Outagamie; Joseph Drexler, Winnebago; Marvin Knecht, Green Lake, and Elmer Weiland, Waushara.

Pledged Assistance Gordon Bubolz, Wolf River Planning Commission chairman, pledged technical assistance from the commission to help in formation of the new "around the lake group."

Bubolz said that he was not particularly interested in having the counties join the Wolf River group but urged them to join forces for a united effort to combat pollution.

Representatives were exposed to the problems in surrounding counties and the conflicts in local land and water use.

Delegates agreed that steps must be taken to first stop the pollution from spreading any further and then take steps

Clop, Clop Went Footsteps

Wearing Wooden Shoes, St. Nick Visits Area Dutch Community

BY JAMES HARP

Post-Crescent Outdoor Editor

It sounded like someone was trying to get in the back door, but the hour was well near midnight and it was comfortable dozing in front of the television set.

Consequently, little attention was paid and the noise went away.

No Wind

A short time later sound slumber again was interrupted and it seemed that someone was trying to pry open a storm window on the back of the house.

The idea was quickly dispelled with the excuse that it must have been the wind, or the branch from a tree.

However, curiosity was a little more than aroused at this point, house slippers were shuffled into and a look into the blackness indicated there was no wind whatsoever.

Perhaps it was the imagination playing one of those tricks that frequently occur when one is dozing off.

The late movie was still rolling on — trying its best to strain the eyesight of the foolhardy who had not given up and turned in for the night. Settling back once again on the davenport, drowsiness again closed in and soon eyelids were slamming like shutters on a haunted house.

From somewhere came a clicking sound. At first it seemed far away — then it grew louder. Click, click it echoed. The television was turned off to better hear the noise which was coming from outside.

On Cobblestones?

The clicking became more of a clop, clop — like someone walking heavily over cobblestones. But, no one was in sight and the clicking grew more silent, moving down the street.

Finally, giving up on trying to figure out the strange goings-on of the night, the warm blankets of the bed were rolled back and breathing became heavy in a short time.

Come dawn, the answer to the mysterious happenings near the midnight hour was apparent. Children gaily reached into long stockings to find what goodies were there. No doubt about it, that annual visitor had been here, spreading his good cheer to the happy youngsters of the Dutch community — St. Nick, with his wooden shoes and all, had made the rounds again.

UCS Drive $25,000 Short of Goal

Volunteers in the 1966 United Red Feather Campaign have raised $232,879 for 88 per cent of the $264,835 goal.

"We see some money that will come in late, but unless these firms have fantastic increases, we will be about $25,000 short of the minimum needs for our 14 agencies," Richard Van Sistine, general chairman, reported today.

Amount to date is $20,463 more than was raised in the 1965 campaign. However, there are two more agencies in the drive this year — Red Cross and the Mental Health Association.

"I am concerned that many of our givers somehow missed the part that these agencies are a part of this year's campaign, and are unaware that there will be no Red Cross campaign this spring, and no Mental Health drive next year," Van Sistine said.

"An analysis of campaign gifts indicate that firms and individuals that are aware, have increased their giving proportionately," he said.

Miss Givers

"Because of the multiplicity of house-to-house campaigns in Appleton, we did not have that kind of campaign this year. Our volunteers contacted givers who had contributed $3 or more last year, and we have asked that other givers send their contributions direct to the Red Feather office. We are also aware that some larger givers have not been contacted because they were not home, were out of town or because they work outside of the city," Van Sistine said.

"We appreciate the newspaper's cooperation in running the 'Did We Miss You?' insert in today's paper, and we ask that any potential giver, please send the coupon in before Dec. 15. Since agency budgets must be set before the first of the year, it is imperative we know what allocations we are going to be able to make," he added.

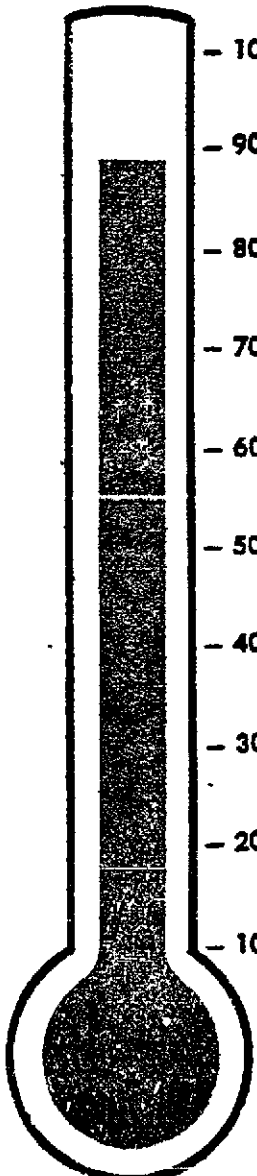

"Local radio stations," and their advertisers are also cooperating in this cleanup," the campaign chairman said.

Van Sistine gave special praise to firms and their employees that have done an outstanding job in bringing in their giving up toward a fair share basis. The employees of St. Elizabeth Hospital increased their gifts from 1965 to 1966 by 522 per cent, and Appleton Memorial Hospital by 417 per cent. H. C. Prange Co. employees show a 192 per cent increase, Zwickler Knitting Mills, 81 per cent and the University of Wisconsin Fox Valley Center, 63 per cent.

Appleton Machine Co. is up 45
